In schools to accelerate results.

Between exhausting night shifts as a custodian, debilitating seizures and feelings of depression, Kevin struggled to keep up in school. Alejandro from Communities In Schools became Kevin’s ally, finding ways for him to catch up in the classroom and empowering him to overcome his difficult circumstances. With Alejandro’s support, Kevin excelled in school and ultimately found the strength to become his own advocate. Now a high school graduate, Kevin plans to attend community college and has set his sights on opening a restaurant with his twin brother. There are millions of at-risk kids like Kevin who need a caring adult to help them stay in school and succeed in life. Behind our evidence-based model is a nationwide network of dedicated staff working in and alongside schools to accelerate results. Together, we’re helping schools build a better tomorrow for today’s youth.

Welcome to the 2020 AASA National Conference on Education in San Diego! Thank you for making the journey to this beautiful city, famously known for sandy beaches, fabulous weather and what locals call the “32nd Street Naval Station.” You are among hundreds of education leaders who have come from across the country to listen and learn as “critical friends” on behalf of the students we serve.

I hope you’re ready to network with like-minded colleagues from large districts and small. I hope you’re ready to collaborate with peers representing urban, suburban and rural communities. I hope you’re ready to become inspired by the great strides taking place in schools from coast to coast. I hope you’re ready to take advantage of your surroundings by engaging with colleagues about the most critical issues facing our schools.

As part of its mission, AASA is committed to your professional development. That’s where this conference comes in. For generations, the nation’s foremost thought leaders in public education have gathered here to share their insights and visions about what makes our school districts the bedrock of our society. Please attend the General Sessions and as many of the Thought Leader and Plenary Sessions as possible. Believe me, you’ll be glad you did.

Let’s grow together as we take in the myriad activities available. There has never been a more important time than now to speak out about public education. Through social media, I encourage you to use AASA’s national conference as a platform to keep in touch with your communities back home by using the conference hashtag #NCE2020. By doing so, you’ll be able to learn from leaders like you who are here and find out what their interests are.

No matter if this is your first AASA national conference or 10th, I applaud you for being here. Your voice matters. Your leadership matters. I hope I get a chance to speak to you during your stay in San Diego.

Thank you for the great work you do serving our children and may you inspire, innovate and lead greatly!

Sincerely,

Dr. Deborah L. Kerr

Deborah Kerr
President
AASA, The School Superintendents Association
Dear Colleague,

On behalf of the thousands of superintendents and other school system leaders creating positive learning environments throughout our nation’s public schools, welcome to San Diego and the 2020 National Conference on Education.

As ambassadors for the youth of America, it is truly exciting to see nearly 3,000 champions for children come together to share winning strategies and best practices and collaborate with one another for the benefit of ALL students.

Themed “The Personalization of Education,” please take advantage of the myriad professional networking opportunities available. By doing so, you’ll be able to leverage ideas and actions through conversations with peers about the critical issues facing education today.

You are here as “critical friends” to meet the needs of these young learners so they can become productive members of our society. You also made the journey to improve your school districts and the communities in which they’re located. You are here because you are serious about building innovation into the cultures, policies and practices in order to scale up the nation’s public education agenda.

I invite you to stop by the very popular Social Media Lounge and check out the latest trends and appropriate “how-tos” so you can determine the best social media platforms to communicate with your key audiences.

From start to finish, you will be able to follow what’s happening at NCE ’20 through Conference Daily Online. This award-winning online publication will provide wall-to-wall coverage to ensure that the leadership of our nation’s school districts are aware of the relevant information and insights available. Check out Conference Daily Online by accessing nce.aasa.org/conference-daily-online.

Please be sure to stop by the Knowledge Exchange Theater, located in the Exhibit Hall, where you can speak directly to other thought leaders on the topics that mean most to you. While in the Exhibit Hall, you can also visit with more than 200 companies committed to improving K–12 education.

Once again, thank you for joining us. If there is anything you need while you’re here, please let us know.

Sincerely,

Daniel A. Domenech
Executive Director

EAB partners with education executives and their staffs to accelerate progress and drive results. It is honored to work with more than 1,400 colleges, universities and K–12 schools across North America and abroad to foster student success at every level. EAB works with K–12 districts to identify the most innovative, scalable and proven strategies to address top challenges. Its research and implementation toolkits focus on topics such as college access, career readiness, teacher recruitment, district communications and school safety. By equipping schools with the right tools to solve critical problems, EAB is helping to enhance opportunities for all students.

Mawi Learning, now part of ACT’s SEL portfolio, empowers educators to drive academic growth and student well-being through the application of Social Emotional Learning (SEL). Selected for inclusion in CASEL’s 2019 Effective Social and Emotional Learning Programs Guide, Mawi Learning helps schools and districts achieve their SEL goals through a comprehensive solution which includes professional development, student curriculum and assessment. The CASEL-aligned and research-based Mawi Learning Turbo Toolkit transforms abstract SEL concepts into tangible, grade-appropriate mental models, tools and frameworks which accurately map to ACT’s SEL assessment tool, Tessera®. Founded by Ethiopian refugee and Harvard graduate Mawi Asgedom, Mawi Learning’s online and blended courses have equipped more than 1 million K–12 students and educators with essential skills needed for success, in and out of the classroom. Together, Mawi Learning programs and the Tessera® assessment create a total SEL solution that supports ACT’s mission: helping people achieve education and workplace success.

Sourcewell, the AASA Premier School Solutions Center Partner, helps K–12 schools better leverage national volume contract pricing on multiple areas of procurement to include school supplies, technology, maintenance supplies and equipment, furniture and facility construction projects. Sourcewell offers schools throughout the nation the best overall contract purchasing solutions and services available. It has competitively solicited and awarded contracts on behalf of 50,000 members. Not only does this create volume benefits, it also attracts solicitations from nationally-acclaimed vendors. School districts can avoid duplicating the bid process by accessing Sourcewell’s contract opportunities. Let Sourcewell introduce you to the simple, streamlined and cost-effective steps to contract purchasing. Visit www.sourcewell-mn.gov for more information.

As soon as AASA receives information about changes in any conference programs, the news is posted to the top of the Conference Daily Online site. Check it daily.
Depending on what particular strand you’re most interested in, there will be plenty of Thought Leader and Breakout sessions to choose from at the National Conference on Education. Below is a guide to assist you in navigating the program.

▶ GENERAL SESSIONS
There is one general session each day. They include the award presentations, special appearances and keynote speakers and are located in Hall A.

▶ THOUGHT LEADER SESSIONS
Thought Leader sessions are large-format educational sessions that touch on some of the most critical topics in the public education field. They are located in the Knowledge Exchange Theater in the Exhibit Hall or Room 6D.

▶ EDUCATIONAL SESSIONS
These one-hour sessions, covering core professional development, run concurrently and offer a wide array of topics. They are located in meeting rooms 1–11.

▶ LEARNING EMPORIUM SESSIONS
The Learning Emporium provides an intimate setting for learning and sharing ideas and best practices with as many as 60 like-minded peers and colleagues. The format offers ample opportunity for discussion and reflective feedback and capitalizes on the smaller setting to maximize networking. All are one-hour sessions and take place in Room 6B.

▶ ROUNDTABLE SESSIONS
Attendees at Roundtable Sessions can choose the discussions to participate in during one-hour time slots. At the 30-minute mark, they have the opportunity to move to a second table if they wish. This format encourages group discussion in a relaxed environment. Sessions are located in the back of the Exhibit Hall.

NATIONAL SUPERINTENDENT OF THE YEAR® AWARD
The National Superintendent of the Year® Program has enabled Americans to recognize and honor U.S. superintendents for the contributions they make every day advocating for public education, our nation’s children and our country’s future. Now in its 32nd year, the National Superintendent of the Year® Program, co-sponsored by AIG Retirement Services, First Student, Inc. and AASA, celebrates the leadership of these outstanding public school superintendents. One of the four finalists will be named National Superintendent of the Year® and will represent colleagues and the profession over the next 12 months.

AASA AWARD WINNERS ARE:

➤ GUSTAVO BALDERAS
Superintendent, Eugene School District, Eugene, OR
Currently: Superintendent, Eugene School District, July 2015 – Present
Academic Degrees: University of Oregon, D.Ed – Educational Leadership; Portland State University, M.S., Curriculum and Instruction; Western Oregon State College, B.A., Secondary Education; Treasure Valley Community College, A.A., General Studies

Gustavo Balderas is the superintendent of Eugene School District 4J in Eugene, OR. He became the district’s 23rd superintendent in 2015. Balderas has been an educator for nearly 30 years. He started his career in education as a high school teacher and counselor, moved to elementary and middle school administrative roles, then served as an area executive director overseeing a cluster of K–12 schools and coordinating district curriculum, as well as an assistant superintendent of support services. He served as superintendent of the Madera Unified School District in Madera, CA, and the Ocean View School District in Huntington Beach, CA, before returning to Oregon to assume the superintendency of Eugene School District 4J. His career highlights include improving equity and cultural proficiency in the state’s K–12 instruction through the Oregon Leadership Network and the Oregon State Action for Educational Leadership Project, as well as developing equity systems around instruction, student behavior and hiring practices in the school districts where he has worked. He is a founding member and past president of the Oregon Association of Latino Administrators, and currently serves as the northwest regional representative and treasurer for the National Association of Latino Administrators and Superintendents. Balderas was appointed to serve on the Oregon State Board of Education in 2018.
SAMANTHA FUHREY
Superintendent, Newton County School System, Covington, GA

Currently: Superintendent, Newton County School System, July 2013 – Present
Previously: Deputy Superintendent – Curriculum, Instruction and Technology, Newton County School System, July 2011 – June 2013
Academic Degrees: Marywood University, B.S., Secondary English Education; State University of West Georgia, M.Ed., Educational Leadership; Georgia College and State University, Ed.S., Educational Leadership

Samantha Fuhrey is currently serving her seventh year as superintendent of the Newton County School System. She is the first female superintendent since the inception of the school system almost 150 years ago. In 2017, 2018 and 2019, she was named one of four finalists for Superintendent of the Year for the state of Georgia. Additionally, her outstanding leadership abilities were recognized by the Georgia School Superintendents Association when she was awarded the President’s Award in 2016. Marywood University in Dunmore, PA, recently recognized Fuhrey with the Distinguished Alumni Award in June 2019. Having extensive experience at the executive level, Fuhrey previously served as the deputy superintendent for curriculum and instruction, the executive director for secondary education, the director of secondary education and the director of professional learning for Newton County Schools. Fuhrey also served as principal of Indian Creek Middle School in Newton County after having been promoted from the assistant principal position. Prior to her employment with Newton Schools, she worked with the DeKalb County School System as an assistant principal and an English teacher.

MICHAEL P. NAGLER
Superintendent of School, Mineola Union Free School District, Mineola, NY

Currently: Superintendent of Schools, Mineola Union Free School District, July 2009 – Present
Academic Degrees: Columbia University, Doctor of Education; Brooklyn College City University of New York, Advanced Certificate, Educational Administration & M.A., History; State University of New York, B.A., History

Michael Nagler has held many positions in his 32 years in education. Before assuming his current position as superintendent of Mineola Public Schools, he began his career as a teacher in New York City while completing his master’s degree and earning his professional diploma. Nagler then went on to earn his doctorate from Columbia University and accepted an administrative position with Mineola in 1999. Believing strongly in the district’s mission to create lifelong learners who contribute positively to a global society, Nagler rooted himself in the Mineola School District and never left.

During his 19 years with the district, he has been a big proponent of using technology to engage students in rigorous content. Mineola was one of the first school districts to implement a 1:1 iPad initiative. Mineola’s innovative use of the iPad has led to the rare feat of having all five Mineola schools to be recognized as Apple Distinguished Schools. Mineola is one of only 104 districts nationwide to be a member of the League of Innovative Schools. This distinction affords Mineola the ability to be at the forefront of nationwide initiatives such as Open Educational Resources (OER), the Maker Movement and Computer Science for All, #CSforall.

JEFFERY SMITH
Superintendent, Hampton City Schools, Hampton, VA

Currently: Superintendent, Hampton City Schools, July 2015 – Present
Academic Degrees: Virginia Polytechnic Institute, EdD, Educational Leadership and Policy Studies; Virginia Commonwealth University, M.Ed., Educational Administration and Supervision; Virginia Union University, B.A., English & Journalism

Jeffery Smith began his tenure as superintendent of Hampton City Schools in July 2015. Prior to his employment with HCS, he served as superintendent of the Town of West Point Public Schools for seven years. Under his leadership, academic success is the highest it has been in decades at HCS. For the first time in Hampton City Schools history, 100% of the division’s 29 schools are accredited without conditions. The school division has strengthened its dual enrollment program with Thomas Nelson Community College, to date yielding a 642% increase in the number of dual enrollment credits taken by HCS students. The on-time graduation rate has increased from 88% for the class of 2015 to 92.73% for the class of 2019.

The dropout rate has decreased from 5.1% for the class of 2015 to 1.26% for the class of 2019. In addition, the Hampton City community has earned the distinction of being the first Ford Next Generation Learning Community in the Commonwealth of Virginia. During the past three years, he has co-chaired the Academies of Hampton’s operating and steering committees to transform the four high schools from five pocket academies to 16 wall-to-wall academies and from 18 to 41 career pathways. The Academies provide young people opportunities based on high-demand, high-wage jobs aligned with regional and state workforce data.
THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 13
4:15 – 6:15PM OPENING GENERAL SESSION

AASA DR. EFFIE H. JONES HUMANITARIAN AWARD
The Dr. Effie H. Jones Humanitarian Award honors the memory of Effie H. Jones, a school administrator, teacher, counselor, organizer of the Office of Minority Affairs at AASA, and a champion of women and minorities in educational leadership. Equity and opportunity were the hallmark of her life’s work, and closing the academic, health and social gap between children who have and those who don’t was one of the cardinal intents of her rigorous efforts to increase the number of women and minority school system leaders. Because of her vision and commitment, AASA’s focus on equity, on superintendent pipeline issues, and on vulnerable children and youth is sharp and unrelenting.

DR. EFFIE H. JONES MEMORIAL EQUITY LUNCHEON
FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 12:30 – 2:30PM
Presenter: Eddie S. Glaude, Jr.
Tickets are required and can be purchased at Registration for $70.
Sponsored by bellxcel.
THE 2020 RECIPIENTS ARE:

STEVEN T. WEBB
Superintendent, Vancouver Public Schools, Vancouver, WA

Steven Webb’s deep commitment to serving children and families, especially those impacted by poverty, took root early in his life when his parents struggled to make ends meet. Owing to a scholarship and by working his way through college, he earned a B.A. from the University of Puget Sound, an M.A. in teaching from Lewis and Clark College and an EdD from Seattle University. He has 35 years in public education in Washington and California, serving as superintendent, deputy superintendent, principal and assistant principal, high school teacher and coach. As superintendent of Vancouver Public Schools since 2008, Webb has championed equity, excellence and innovation. He has recruited, selected and/or promoted 17 women into cabinet-level leadership positions. In addition, VPS has established a network of Family-Community Resource Centers in 18 poverty-affected schools and created two mobile FCRCs to serve other schools. Those strategic initiatives and others have improved the four-year graduation rate from 64% in 2010 to 85% today in a diverse district where roughly half of the students qualify for federally subsidized meals and approximately 100 languages are spoken. As 2017–18 president of the Washington Association of School Administrators, Webb encouraged and supported equity opportunities, including a Women in Leadership conference. He was the 2016 Washington State Superintendent of the Year and one of four finalists for AASA National Superintendent of the Year.

JOE A. HAIRSTON
Associate Professor, Educational Leadership and Policy Studies, Howard University School of Education; Co-Founder, AASA-Howard University Urban Superintendents Academy

Dr. Joe Hairston was a pioneer for equity and inclusiveness in public education. In 2000, he served as the first African-American superintendent in Baltimore County, MD. His 12 years of leadership in Baltimore saw improved academic achievement of African-American students, a rise in test scores and the graduation rate, greater student participation in Advanced Placement classes, a significant increase in National Blue Ribbon schools and more students going on to college. Dr. Hairston championed an “all means all” credo of equality in education both in Baltimore County and in Clayton County, GA, where he previously served as superintendent for five years. As a principal, he turned around a poorly performing high school in Suitland, MD, and was recognized by the White House and received a National Award of Excellence for this achievement. In 2014, he joined the faculty of Howard University, grooming the next generation of education leaders with a special interest in urban communities. In 2015, inspired by his work at Howard, and in response to the lack of diversity among superintendents, he worked with AASA leadership and co-founded the AASA-Howard University Urban Superintendents Academy. Dr. Hairston earned an EdD from Virginia Tech, an M.A. from American University, and a B.A. from Maryland State University (now the University of Maryland Eastern Shore). Dr. Hairston, a relentless champion for equity, died on December 27, 2019. His loss is deeply felt by many, but his legacy, like Dr. Effie Hall Jones, lives on in the lives of every student, educator and community member who benefited from his service.

REVIEWING NEW BOOKS

If you are interested in reviewing at least one or two new books on education or organizational leadership during the coming year for School Administrator magazine, please let the editor know at magazine@aasa.org. Anyone who is a current member of AASA is eligible.
The highest performing state-level, Canadian and Association for the Advancement of International Education winners will also be honored.

SOCIAL EMOTIONAL LEARNING
FOCUSING ON THE TOTAL CHILD

FEBRUARY 18–20, 2021

Ernest N. Morial Convention Center, New Orleans
WWW.AASA.ORG/NCE

Presented by
THE SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS ASSOCIATION
FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 14
9 – 11AM SECOND GENERAL SESSION

WOMEN IN SCHOOL LEADERSHIP AWARD
The Women in School Leadership Award, sponsored by Horace Mann and AASA, pays tribute to the talent, creativity and vision of outstanding women educational administrators in the nation’s public schools. Any female superintendent, assistant superintendent, aspiring superintendent, central-office director, school principal or classroom teacher in the United States who plans to continue in the profession may apply. The award program is designed to recognize the exceptional leadership of active, front-line women in school leadership who are making a difference in the lives of students every day. One Women in School Leadership Award will be given in each category.

Sponsored by Horace Mann

THE 2020 FINALISTS IN THE CENTRAL OFFICE/PRINCIPAL CATEGORY ARE:

▶ SARA PAUL
Assistant Superintendent, White Bear Lake Area Schools, Saint Paul, MN
Establishing quality programs through partnerships has been a key theme throughout Sara Paul’s career. She received the Ethical Leadership Award from the William and Betty MacMillan Foundation for an innovative program she developed in partnership with the Rotary Club and a renowned federal prosecutor. Paul is in her sixth year serving as the assistant superintendent for the White Bear Lake Area Schools. She is committed to increasing access to innovative programs in order to equip today’s students with the skills to thrive in tomorrow’s world.

▶ SHELLY REGGIANI
Executive Director, Equity & Instructional Services, North Clackamas School District, Milwaukie, OR
Shelly Reggiani has more than 25 distinguished years in public education, the past eight years as the executive director of equity and instructional services for the North Clackamas School District (NCSD). This south suburban Portland district consists of 32 schools serving 17,327 students. More than 60 native languages are spoken by students and families in the district, and the community is growing in its racial and cultural diversity. NCSD is continually recognized for its work with educational equity within Oregon and nationally.

▶ PATRICIA SULLIVAN-KOWALSKI
Senior Director of Student Support and Special Education, Meriden Public Schools, Meriden, CT
Patricia Sullivan-Kowalski has been an educational and instructional leader in urban education for more than 23 years. She is currently the senior director of student supports and special education for the Meriden Public Schools, Meriden, CT. Sullivan-Kowalski successfully balances numerous responsibilities and demands while maintaining a student-centered approach. She oversees and manages a $30 million budget and leads multiple student programs and departments. She supervises more than 300 certified and classified staff members and recently became the lead supervisor for the two middle school principals.
THE 2020 FINALISTS IN THE SUPERINTENDENT CATEGORY ARE:

▶ SUSAN ENFIELD
Superintendent, Highline Public Schools, Burien, WA
Susan Enfield is a former high school English, journalism and ELL teacher. She served as chief academic officer and then as interim superintendent for Seattle Public Schools before coming to Highline in 2012. She previously held leadership positions in Evergreen Public Schools (Vancouver, WA), Portland Public Schools and the Pennsylvania Department of Education.

▶ LATONYA GOFFNEY
Superintendent, Aldine Independent School District, Houston, TX
LaTonya Goffney serves as the superintendent of schools for the Aldine Independent School District. Since taking the helm in July 2018, she has dedicated herself to more than 67,000 students and more than 9,000 employees of the district as well as the entire Aldine community.

▶ CANDACE SINGH
Superintendent, Fallbrook Union Elementary School District, Fallbrook, CA
Candace Singh, has been an educator in San Diego County for close to 30 years. She is well-known and respected for her work as a turnaround principal and superintendent, blending courage, action and exceptionally high expectations with grace, respect and kindness to create schools and working environments that inspire greatness in students and adults. Her proven track record of transforming public schools has contributed to her reputation as a highly valued leadership coach, speaker and consultant.

THE 2020 FINALISTS IN THE SCHOOL-BASED CATEGORY ARE:

▶ LESLEY BRUINTON
Public Relations Coordinator, Tuscaloosa City Schools, Tuscaloosa, AL
Lesley Bruinton is an accredited in public relations practitioner with more than 18 years of professional experience. The former television journalist now serves as the public relations coordinator for the Tuscaloosa City Schools—an urban district with more than 10,000 students. It’s a job where she can continue her craft of writing with her rapid-fire typing skills. She can usually be found brainstorming and selling a big idea, much to the chagrin of those around her who know it will be a lot of work, but a lot of fun! She is a two-time past president of the Alabama School Public Relations Association and a two-time winner of the Gold Medallion, awarded by the National School Public Relations Association.

▶ SHENÉE HOLLOWAY
Program Specialist, Gwinnett County Public Schools, Suwanee, GA
Shenée Holloway is an educational leader who has been in the field of education since 2002. She taught middle grades at a small private academy for two years in Charlotte, NC, before moving to Georgia in 2004 where she taught 6th- and 8th-grade language arts at Hull Middle School in Duluth. Holloway served as a mentor and was a Teacher of the Year. In the 2013–14 school year, she served as a teacher, then as a parent instructional coordinator then led the first freshman mentoring program.
AASA’s National Conference on Education
AASA AWARDS
FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 14
9 – 11AM SECOND GENERAL SESSION
AASA DISTINGUISHED SERVICE AWARD
AASA honors exceptional educational leaders as well as the immediate past president of the association with the Distinguished Service Award. These educational leaders are recognized by AASA for bringing honor to themselves, their colleagues and their profession; rendering exemplary service to their state or national professional association; and contributing to the education field through writing, public advocacy or other activities.

THE 2020 RECIPIENTS ARE:

► JOHNNY L. VESELKA
Johnny Veselka retired in June 2018 after serving as executive director of the Texas Association of School Administrators (TASA) for more than 32 years. Under his leadership, TASA became a major voice for school administrators on legislative and state policy matters, and became the leading provider of professional development for school system leaders in Texas. TASA’s Public Education Visioning Institute (2006) published the document “Creating a New Vision for Public Education in Texas” focused on school transformation. Through his efforts, the Texas Legislature then created the Texas High Performance Schools Consortium to facilitate the Institute’s work. He guided the development of the Texas Public Accountability Consortium and, prior to his retirement, organized the TASA 2025 Task Force to create a Strategic Framework for the association’s future. An AASA member for 36 years, he actively promoted collaboration between AASA and the state associations. Upon his retirement, Veselka was named Executive Director Emeritus in recognition of his service to the association.

► CHRISTOPHER GAINES
An education innovator, Chris Gaines, superintendent of Mehlville School District in suburban St. Louis, MO, is a leader in digital transformation and in personalizing the learning experience for all students. His leadership has resulted in higher levels of student engagement and academic achievement at each of the districts he has served. Gaines has served as a school superintendent for the past 19 years. Prior to Mehlville School District, he led Wright City R-II School District and Crawford County R-1 School District. Before taking on those roles, Gaines was a high school principal, science teacher, math teacher, coach and bus driver. A national and state leader in education, Gaines is the past president of AASA, The School Superintendents Association. He also serves on the Missouri Association of School Administrators Executive Committee. He holds degrees from Southeast Missouri State University and earned his doctorate at Saint Louis University in Educational Leadership. Gaines lives on a small horse farm outside St. Louis with his wife Debbie and son Zack.

VH1 SAVE THE MUSIC
This award for distinguished support of music education is sponsored by the VH1 Save The Music Foundation in collaboration with AASA. The award is given to a superintendent or chief executive officer who is committed to ensuring that music education is part of the core curriculum in all schools in his or her school district.

THE 2020 RECIPIENT IS:
Keely Roberts
Zion Elementary School District 6
Zion, IL
THE FRIENDS OF AASA AWARD
This award is given by AASA’s executive director to a non-educator or school district-based person or group/organization who has consistently supported the mission of AASA and has given their time and effort to help the association accomplish our goals to advocate on behalf of public education and assist with the professional development of our members.

THE 2020 RECIPIENTS ARE:

» JACINDA H. CONBOY
General Counsel, New York State Council of School Superintendents, Albany, NY
Jacinda “Jazz” Conboy, Esq., is the general counsel at the NYS Council of School Superintendents. At the Council, she provides provides advice regarding education issues, holds legal conferences, frequently presents to superintendents, negotiates contracts and assists superintendents in various legal matters. In addition, she recently developed a program to promote and support women leaders in education in New York state.

Conboy spent approximately 12 years in private practice and previously concentrated her practice in representing school districts, municipalities and private sector clients in complex employment and civil rights litigation. She has considerable experience in advising clients on employment practices and policies, preparing employment policies and agreements, and has lectured regarding employment practices.

» MAREE SNEED
Partner, Hogan Lovells US LLP, Washington, DC
Maree Sneed is a life-long supporter of public education and has dedicated her career to strengthening public schools and supporting the leaders within them. Her rich career reaches from her time as a teacher and principal to her current work as an expert in legal and regulatory impact on public schools. She is a long-time friend of AASA, supporting our work related to superintendent pathway, development, employment and contracts. Districts seek her advice because of her extensive experience working in the education system, her legal acumen, her public policy work, and her ability to make connections between the education and legal arenas.

Sneed has advised clients in the education sector on a broad range of issues, including from social media, bullying and cyberbullying, harassment, and sex and race discrimination to English language learners, special education/IDEA, equitable access and opportunities, and integration and desegregation. She also provides regulatory advice to clients and litigated cases for clients in state courts as well as federal, district and appellate courts.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 15
10:30AM – 12NOON CLOSING GENERAL SESSION

THE SCHOOL VAPING CRISIS & EMERGING LITIGATION

The American Heart Association is leading the fight against e-cigarettes and vaping — and a growing number of school districts are turning to litigation as a means to curb this serious threat to public health. For this session, attorneys from Lieff Cabraser Heimann & Bernstein LLP, a national law firm serving as co-lead counsel in litigation against a large vaping device manufacturer, provide information about the state of the nation’s school vaping crisis and facilitate a dialogue on what districts need in order to cope with the problem.

BC SKILLS: RURAL RELEVANCE IN THE TECHNOLOGY WORKFORCE & ECONOMY

Once considered a thriving manufacturing and agricultural community, Barren County, KY, is bearing the yokes of deindustrialization and “farming belt” cuts made in the past two decades. As a countermeasure and via the visionary leadership of the superintendent, BC Skills, a computer programming and entrepreneurship apprenticeship program, was constructed in partnership with representatives from the technology industry as well as local community leaders and philanthropists. The results are staggering! BC Skills is successfully training regional high school seniors and adults in a manner that allows them to thrive in the 21st-century economy and workforce. Though most learners entered the program with no programming experience, many now have been hired by software development firms in Boston, Louisville and Nashville; have built their own technology start-ups; or are continuing their education in computer science at the university level.

Presenters:
Justin Browning, Project Manager, BC Skills, Barren County Board of Education, Glasgow, KY
Scott Harper, Director of Instruction and Technology, Barren County Board of Education, Glasgow, KY
Amy Irwin, Principal, Barren County High School, Glasgow, KY

ACHIEVING SOCIAL, EMOTIONAL AND COGNITIVE LEARNING THROUGH ACADEMIC TEAMING

Educators can empower students to take ownership of their own learning and behavior through student-led academic teaming, a new model of instruction. Academic teaming is an evidence-based daily instructional process that takes student grouping to the next level. It prepares students to succeed in college and the workplace by building skills such as leadership, grit, communication, critical thinking and creativity. Presenters share results and examples from schools nationwide where students experienced remarkable growth in SEL and academic achievement while closing gaps and promoting equity and access in core instruction. Engage in reflection activities and develop a vision for instruction that helps students master rigorous academic standards while, at the same time, equipping them with SEL skills. Leave ready to transform your classroom, school or district through the power of student teaming.

Presenters:
Patricia Saelens, Superintendent, Caroline County Public Schools, Denton, MD
Michael Toth, Education Author and CEO, Learning Sciences International, West Palm Beach, FL

THE BIRTH OF A HOME-GROWN CHARACTER EDUCATION PROGRAM

Studies of effective early childhood education confirm that academic skills in the first years of schooling are intertwined with the ability to regulate emotions and behaviors and engage in positive social interactions with peers and adults. Schools must focus on building community and nurturing and enabling students to develop socially and emotionally. Without programs to support the social and emotional development of the students at a young and critical age, behaviors that require disciplinary action will always be an issue. Learn how to provide consequences appropriately and effectively to the different targeted age groups based on their social and emotional cognitive levels and encourage all students to become good citizens and to be proud of their efforts.

Presenter:
Christopher Meyrick, Superintendent, Beach Haven School District, Beach Haven, NJ

CREATING A LEARNER-CENTERED FRAMEWORK FOCUSED ON STUDENT BEHAVIORS

To prepare students to be lifelong learners capable of adapting to new technologies and interacting with people in a global environment, schools must focus on the learner. A learner-centered framework is one way districts can create a common language for discussing important elements of the learning process and desired student outcomes. This common language serves as a resource to align and strengthen professional practice by facilitating impactful coaching conversations, which positively affects instruction and ultimately increases student achievement. Hear from a school district that is developing a learner-centered framework designed to complement their existing teaching rubric and support student learning of 21st-century skills. Leave with tools and resources.

Presenters:
Kandace Bethea, Superintendent, Marion County School District, Marion, SC
Jason Culbertson, CEO, Insight Education Group, Encino, CA

EQUITY AWARENESS AND ITS IMPACT ON TEACHER AND STUDENT LEARNING

Engage in discussion and planning around not only what equitable education entails, but, more importantly, ways to address equity with a growth mindset in order to develop a better plan for addressing equity in the future. This session challenges you to examine your biases, the biases of your districts, and any existing equity support structures in your districts with the aim of re-evaluating their effectiveness. Engage in dialogue to push thinking about what an equitable education truly means in order to unpack what your districts are doing (and not doing) to improve education for all students. This session extends to specific school structures, such as ILTs and PLCs, while permeating the school culture surrounding what it means for all students to experience an equitable education. Leave with concrete ideas for how to begin addressing equity in your own district.

Dusty Blakey, Superintendent, Colonial School District, New Castle, DE
Michael Moody, Founder, Insight Education Group & Insight Advance, Encino, CA

NATIONAL SERVICE AND YOU: USING AMERICORPS AND SENIOR CORPS RESOURCES

The Corporation for National and Community Service is the federal agency that administers AmeriCorps and Senior Corps programs across the country. Nearly 300,000 people serve with AmeriCorps and Senior Corps annually, almost a third of whom provide in-school and after-school support to at-risk youth. AmeriCorps and Senior Corps members work in more than 12,000 schools, including one out of every four low-performing schools. This interactive session features the Corporation for National and Community Service’s Superintendent’s/Principal’s Toolkit, which provides education leaders with an overview of national service resources and examples of how they can advance district- and school-level goals. It also includes information about how education leaders can expand their college- and career-readiness priorities to include having their alumni serve in AmeriCorps, which will better prepare them to succeed after high school. AmeriCorps also serves as a pipeline for future educators.

REVOLUTIONIZING EDTECH WITH INTEROPERABILITY

Learn how to revolutionize your edtech and gain invaluable insights into your students with connected tools. Join Project Unicorn and Providence Public Schools to discuss how districts can dig deeper to develop a digital ecosystem with interoperability. Discuss pain points commonly identified by districts, including privacy, security, policy compliance, rostering and login management. Technology will never replace great teaching, but it can help educators inform instruction, save time and improve student outcomes. Learn how to optimize your data and mobilize your movement in the digital space with interoperability.

EMPOWERMENT BEGINS WITH U — POSITIVE MIND, POSITIVE RESULTS

Our approach to life affects our entire well-being — physically, mentally, emotionally and spiritually. Stress and anxiety can manifest in physical illness such as headaches/migraines, irritability, stomach tightness or upset, back or joint pain, depression or a general feeling of being run down. We can help ourselves by improving our mental attitude. Clearing the clutter in our mind as well as in our physical surroundings lifts our spirits and changes our perspective. Positive emotions can contribute to marital/relationship satisfaction, higher incomes, friendship/social development and better physical health. Leave this session understanding that nurturing wellness is about ensuring that our physical and mental needs are being met and that this will go a long way toward improving our overall happiness and welfare. This is important for students and teachers alike.

MAKING A DIFFERENCE: AN EQUITY TEAM IN EVERY SCHOOL

What are the foundational components necessary for developing equity teams in predominantly white schools? What are the common missteps and how can your teachers and district leaders avoid them? How can teachers center equity and still have time for everything else they are required to do? Predominantly white school districts are increasingly expected to raise competencies and accountability with respect to equity, diversity, inclusion and social justice. It is an effort that takes long-term commitment and investment on both macro and micro levels. Lasting change benefits marginalized and privileged students, teachers, staff and families by removing barriers to learning through increased awareness, skills and action. Learn how small, committed groups of educators can make an enormous difference in their districts.

A ROADMAP TO FAMILY ENGAGEMENT AND ATTENDANCE IMPROVEMENT

This session showcases Meriden Public Schools’ pathway to success in boosting student attendance districtwide and can serve as a roadmap for school systems across the country. In this collaborative session, learn about the district’s roadmap, which includes (1) managing change in a schoolwide shift from one-way communication to two-way family engagement; (2) strengthening relationships among students, families and educators; (3) establishing shared accountability and buy-in among all stakeholders; and (4) partnering with leading organizations to build capacity and amplify impact. Come away with tactical strategies to boost attendance and engage families in alignment with ESSA.

ENRICHING STEM EDUCATION THROUGH HANDS-ON EXPERIENTIAL SIMULATIONS

For more than three decades, Challenger Center has offered experiential STEM-focused simulations to more than 5 million students across the country. Every Las Cruces Public Schools 6th-grade student participates in one of these simulations at their Challenger Learning Center. Presenters discuss why the district incorporated the program into the school year and how these types of programs can benefit students — from increasing engagement and self-efficacy to developing critical 21st-century skills. Learn more about what elements keep students engaged and how these standards-aligned, hands-on experiential programs can spark a passion for learning and open students’ eyes to myriad STEM careers.

Presenters:
Kathleen Guitar, Lead Flight Director, Challenger Learning Center of Las Cruces/Las Cruces Public Schools, Las Cruces, NM
Denise Kopecky, Vice President of Education, Challenger Center, Washington, DC
Wendi Miller-Tomlinson, Associate Superintendent for Curriculum & Instruction, Las Cruces Public Schools, Las Cruces, NM

BEYOND THE DEVICES: UNPACKING THE PROFESSIONAL LEARNING NEEDED TO MAKE THE SHIFT TO PERSONALIZATION

Transformational learning initiatives often begin with the introduction of new technology but stop short before teachers are equipped to shift practice and personalize instruction for students. Learn how Naperville District 203’s multi-year strategy has built the capacity of educators to develop personalized learning environments. Understand the underlying professional learning structures created to sustain this shift, then use collaborative work time to draft a plan for your school or district.

SOLVING SCHOOL OVERCROWDING THROUGH PUBLIC PRIVATE PARTNERSHIPS (P3)

Anne Arundel County Public Schools experienced overcrowding in a cluster of schools that the district’s capital improvement plan was not able to resolve for a decade. The board of education was under fire from the families in the community and developers in the area were unable to build due to a county ordinance preventing development in communities with schools closed to enrollment. A local education management organization, The Children’s Guild, stepped in to partner with the school district and local developer to build a school at no cost to the district. Through a contractual relationship, the school system was able to target the enrollment of the overcrowded schools and establish a school of choice, operated by The Children’s Guild. The public private partnership (P3) reduced overcrowding in the targeted schools’ AACPS and The Children’s Guild replicated the model in another cluster of schools with similar results.

Presenters:
- Patrick Crain, Director of Alternative Education, Anne Arundel County Public Schools, Annapolis, MD

PREVENT FAILURE: PREPARING MIDDLE SCHOOL STUDENTS FOR SUCCESS IN HIGH SCHOOL

College and career readiness begins in middle school. Student performance in 9th grade is a strong indicator of later high school success or failure, and students who finish 9th grade on track are four times more likely to graduate from high school. The good news is that many districts can and are helping students successfully navigate that critical transition. Join three district leaders for a candid discussion about what works and what doesn’t when it comes to strategies for supporting struggling middle school students with intervention and remediation to get them back on track and prepared for the transition to high school.

Presenters:
- Laurie Barron, Member, Association for Middle Level Education Board of Trustees, and Superintendent, Evergreen School District 50, Westerville, OH

COLLEGIATE EDU-NATION: A P-20 SYSTEM MODEL FOR STUDENT SUCCESS

Collegiate Edu-Nation is a nonprofit developed in Roscoe Collegiate Independent School District in Roscoe, TX, with support from the Texas Education Agency to scale rural innovations in education throughout Texas and the United States. The Edu-Nation P-20 System Model for Student Success is a collaboration between higher education and workforce that provides non-traditional support for non-traditional students through completion of a graduate degree. The three pillars of the Edu-Nation Model include the expectation that all students will earn college degrees symbolic of college readiness, earn industry-recognized STEM certifications symbolic of workforce readiness, and conduct meaningful research projects symbolic of lifetime learning to prepare them for careers that do not yet exist. The goal for the model is to impact student outcomes in more than 300 of the 700 small and rural schools in Texas by 2030 as part of the 60 X 30 Texas Initiative.

CREATING EQUITY OF OPPORTUNITY FOR UNDERREPRESENTED STUDENTS IN AP/IB PROGRAMS

Although “challenging high school courses” and “advanced classes” can be defined in many ways, a focus on AP/IB programs provides the clearest measurable standard aligned with college-level work. The issue of access to challenging high school coursework affects students from all backgrounds; however, low-income students and students of color access AP/IB courses at the lowest rates. This presentation shares tools for integrating growth mindset concepts into the identification, recruitment and enrollment of underrepresented students into AP/IB courses, including student and staff survey tools.

Presenters:
- David Belcher, Assistant Professor, Educational Leadership, University of Missouri, Columbia, MO
- Tracey Conrad, Partnership Director, Equal Opportunity Schools, Seattle, WA

ROOM 4
MENTAL HEALTH IN SCHOOLS: MEETING THE PRESSING NEEDS OF STUDENTS AND STAFF

Students come to school with poverty, homelessness, stress and myriad other traumas that greatly impact their ability to do well, and can sometimes be the greatest impediment to academic achievement and a successful transition to college/career. What can schools do to support students with mental health needs? How can staff recognize when a student or colleague needs support? Presenters share findings from recent research on student mental health, including the CDC report on Adverse Childhood Experiences. Mental health also has important implications for the safety of students, staff and the larger school community. A representative from the new National Center for School Safety discusses the Center’s organization, including resources on mental health, violence prevention and capacity building. Opportunities for engaging the Center and availing its resources are also discussed.

Presenters:
Phyllis Holditch Niolon, Behavioral Scientist, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Atlanta, GA
Thomas Reischl, Associate Research Scientist, University of Michigan School of Public Health, Ann Arbor, MI

SUPERINTENDENT STRESS: ITS SIGNIFICANCE, SUGGESTIONS AND SOLUTIONS

This interactive session explores stress based on data from Illinois and Iowa superintendents, as well as how administrative assistants perceive superintendent stress. Explore questions that include: What are the greatest superintendent stressors? How do demographic factors impact stress levels? What is the impact of stress on the superintendent’s personal life? How do superintendents manage stress? Ideas, suggestions and recommendations for addressing the stress of the superintendency are also presented.

Presenters:

ALIGNING BEST PRACTICES TO MAKE SCHOOLS SAFER

The new technologies designed to make schools safer are only as effective as the best practices that are in place to support and integrate them into appropriate routines. Research-based practices related to the programs, protocols, inter-relationships and metrics that are shared among stakeholders must be aligned. Learn how to diagnose the effectiveness of the alignment of safety and security practices and select the technologies that will be most purposeful. Vitalinsight™ is a School Solutions Partner of AASA and is the point of the spear in the GG4L Safer Schools in America Initiative, designed to match schools with the technologies they most need to create secure learning environments. Gain from the knowledge and experience of those whose schools have been engaged in the project.

FIVE THINGS HIGH SCHOOL EDUCATION LEADERS NEED TO KNOW ABOUT COLLEGE SEARCH

How do student priorities shift during the college search process and application cycle? What role do student mindsets play in the college planning process? And, what blind spots must students overcome as they prepare for their post-secondary journeys? Get answers from education leaders to these questions and how to help your students manage the college planning process. Gather best practices from Heidi Sipe, superintendent of Umatilla School District, about how her district leverages myOptions resources. Leave with a deeper understanding on how to provide the right support to each student at the right time using the new educator platform, myOptions Encourage, and gain an understanding about myOptions — the nation’s largest free voluntary college and career planning program.

SCALABLE SEL SOLUTIONS: COMBINING CURRICULUM, ASSESSMENT AND PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT FOR POWERFUL RESULTS

For social-emotional learning to truly transform schools, districts need a comprehensive solution that meets the needs of their students, their staffs and their communities. At the same time, districts need flexible solutions and provide easy pathways to scalability. In this interactive session, learn how Miami Dade fundamentally changed their approach to SEL through the Middle School Redesign Initiative and hear about the impacts of their scaled, multi-year approach. Hear from on-the-ground experts about how curriculum, assessment and professional development offer districts the opportunity to boldly reimagine the impact and outcomes of SEL.

PRINCIPAL PIPELINES: A COST-EFFECTIVE STRATEGY TO IMPROVE PRINCIPAL RETENTION AND STUDENT ACHIEVEMENT

Research indicates that in terms of school-related factors, quality of school leadership is second only to quality of teaching in level of impact on student learning. Learn how six districts, with support from The Wallace Foundation, invested in a Principal Pipeline Initiative that resulted in improved student achievement in literacy and improved principal retention. The Principal Pipeline Initiative, a six-year effort, was launched in the 2011-2012 school year in Charlotte-Mecklenburg, NC; Denver, CO; Gwinnett County, GA; Hillsborough County, FL; New York, NY; and Prince George’s County, MD. The “pipeline” refers to four mutually reinforcing components the districts put in place to seek to boost principal effectiveness: rigorous standards that spell out what their principals are supposed to know and do; high-quality preservice training for aspiring principals; data-informed hiring; and well-aligned support and evaluation of principals, especially newcomers to the job. The findings suggest that a student scoring at the 50th percentile in reading in a comparison school would have scored in the 56th percentile in a pipeline school with a new principal. The positive results were felt districtwide across the participating districts and, to a large extent, across grade levels. Statistically significant, positive benefits in reading and math were seen in both elementary and middle school, while high school saw such benefits in math.

BUILDING TEACHER LEADERS TO COMBAT EDUCATIONAL INEQUITIES

The School District of Osceola County (SDOC) is one of the fastest-growing districts in Florida. Yet, the families who live there face financial and housing struggles, working in a tourism-based economy. Teacher retention is historically low among high-needs schools, often leaving students who have the greatest needs being taught by less-qualified teachers. Recognizing this impact on students, SDOC officials partnered with New Teacher Center (NTC) to identify strong teacher leaders to serve as mentors, accelerate the teaching practice of new teachers and increase retention. By building teacher leaders who provide quality, strengths-based instructional feedback, educators champion equity in their schools and classrooms and create an equitable learning environment for their diverse student learners. Through its work with NTC, SDOC mentors learn to create optimal learning environments that balance academic standards and the social and emotional needs of both teachers and students.

Presenters:
Aimee Ballans, Senior Program Consultant, New Teacher Center, Santa Cruz, CA

IMPACT OF PBIS AND CULTURALLY RELEVANT PEDAGOGY FOR STUDENT SUCCESS

Students who attend urban schools in high-poverty neighborhoods face challenges that can lead to negative behaviors and impact their educational achievement. Research suggests that quality early childhood education with a strong social-emotional component improves the educational outcome of these students. Additionally, positive behavior interventions and supports (PBIS) and the consideration of the cultural background of students is a promising way to reduce behavior issues and increase academic engagement. Hear about how a superintendent of a high-poverty urban school district studied the impact of providing PBIS and practicing culturally relevant pedagogy; explore successful approaches to supporting diverse students who need it most; discover how to lead the implementation of PBIS with fidelity to mitigate negative effects and provide supports to diverse students; and engage in conversation around cutting-edge trends in social-emotional learning and solutions you can implement now.

CULTIVATING EQUITY THROUGH THE FRAMEWORK FOR TEACHING
The essential aspects of an educator’s responsibilities that ultimately improve student equity and engagement have been documented through empirical studies and research from Charlotte Danielson. This complex nature of teaching is divided into 22 components clustered into four domains: Planning and Preparation, The Classroom Environment, Instruction and Professional Responsibilities. Presenters highlight the complexity of teaching and use case studies, rubrics and collaborative discussions to help educators hone their implementation of equity and engagement in the classroom.

USING SCHOOLWIDE TRAUMA-SENSITIVE BEHAVIORAL MTSS/RTI TO INCREASE EFFECTIVENESS AND SUSTAINABILITY

Half a million teachers in the United States leave their schools each year. Only 16% of these departures are due to retirement. Teachers cite support from administrators and student behavior as their main reasons for leaving or considering leaving their school. Explore the unique needs of students who have experienced trauma and look at how this affects their learning and behavior. This lens is then be used to explore how a trauma-sensitive comprehensive behavioral MTSS/RTI systems approach can better support all students, increase achievement, and create a more sustainable and supportive environment for staff. After learning the components of a strong, trauma-sensitive behavioral system, learn how to tailor these components to meet the needs of schools within your district. AFTER-SCHOOL AND SUMMER TIME ARE HALF OF THE STORY OF K–12 EDUCATION

Parents work 2,000 hours a year; children are in school for only 1,080 hours. After-school and summer time are half of the K–12 education story and pose challenges for working families. By supporting access to quality after-school programs for every child, a district can make a bigger impact on its community. Yet, after-school program management can be complex and significant inequity exists as underprivileged students may have limited or no access to quality enrichment activities due to high cost. Successful districts and schools have leveraged local communities of educators and novel technologies to simplify after-school management, enhance program quality, ensure student safety and improve equity through effective fundraising. Learn the best after-school management practices from successful districts.

A Systemic Approach to Designing Better School Systems

District leaders are often looking for the “next big thing” to improve instruction and student learning, but rarely do we have the opportunity to reflect on our school systems as systems, with each part impacting the other. Pittsburgh Public Schools is undertaking an ambitious effort to do just that. In collaboration with a leading not-for-profit organization, district leaders are studying the education systems that equitably produce the highest-achieving students and then carefully comparing themselves against these systems to identify gaps, apply lessons to their context and design a new, aligned system. Learn from district leaders and leading researchers about the nine common elements of top systems, how to create the right group of stakeholders, and the process that is helping them successfully transcend the project-based initiatives of the past to design a better system that will make a difference for the staff and students in the years ahead.

Setting the Foundations for Successful Schoolwide SEL: An Equity-Oriented Approach

School leaders are increasingly being asked to provide supports for the whole child, and while there are many options for SEL implementation, the best outcomes are achieved when leaders take time to develop a plan that is equity-driven, systematic and data-informed. By addressing non-academic and academic needs with a system of multi-tiered student supports, leaders will see increased student achievement and improved schoolwide climate and culture. Hear from district, school and graduate leaders who have experienced significant success with this approach and can offer insights into best practices. Walk away with ideas for what this could look like in your own district, including a framework for developing a strategic plan, using data to measure outcomes, activating community partnerships and providing individualized supports.

Leadership Principles: Creating a Culture of Achievement

For decades, we’ve been trying to close the achievement gap. The superintendents of Perris Union High School District and Val Verde Unified School District in California used their leadership to drive student success, support a high-performing team and build leadership capacity within their downline. After adopting a proactive, data-driven attendance improvement program, the districts saw tremendous growth in their attendance rates and were honored by the California Department of Education for their improvements. Learn how they leveraged the five principles of continuous improvement and leadership to improve student attendance, increase graduation rates and close the achievement gap.

STRATEGIES FOR EDUCATING BLACK AND LATINO MALE STUDENTS WHO HAVE EXPERIENCED TRAUMA

More than 60% of children ages 17 and under have been exposed to crime, violence and abuse either directly or indirectly. Children exposed to five or more traumatic experiences in the first three years of life have a 76% likelihood of a delay in language or emotional or brain development.

Students who have experienced trauma are 15 times more likely to attempt suicide, four times more likely to become alcoholics and three times more likely to be depressed. This interactive session gives administrators strategies and tools to help students and staff cope with traumatic experiences immediately and to help students and staff change the narrative and overcome trauma.

DESIGNING A CULTURE HANDBOOK TO BUILD TRUST IN CHANGING TIMES

District administrators must manage the productive discomfort of leading rapid change. Intentionally building a culture of trust begins with identifying your district’s values and leading from your core. Culture is the heart of the school system; it isn’t a statement or poster — it’s action and behavior. Learn how the Hilliard City School District identified core values, behavior expectations and specific outcomes. By writing a culture handbook and designing a curriculum for all students in grades PK-12, the district built a culture that enables more innovation and creativity. Leave with specific steps to begin aligning your culture, resources and goals.

IS GIFTED IDENTIFICATION A SOCIAL JUSTICE ISSUE?

Intelligence tests have played a critical role in determining eligibility for gifted services. In an increasingly diverse country, we must recognize that these tests pose problems for those with limited educational opportunity and language skills. Traditional intelligence tests with their verbal, nonverbal and quantitative content were developed for the U.S. military in the early 1900s. At that time, researchers noted that the accurate evaluation of intelligence for diverse populations, especially those with limited opportunity to learn and use English, was unjust. Intelligence testing was seen as a social justice issue then, and it remains one today.

HOW SAFE ARE WE? ASSURING CYBER SECURITY AND DATA PRIVACY

Constantly growing concerns about cyber security and data privacy, combined with an increase in teacher and student reliance on internet accessibility and digital tools for learning, means school cyber security is subject to more scrutiny and questions than ever before. It is critical that superintendents and school leaders know how to be aggressive in getting ahead of cyber security threats and in safeguarding all data within their school systems. Join four savvy superintendents as they highlight current laws and policies around cyber security and data privacy. Leave this session with strategies and resources to help you analyze your current security systems and protect your school networks. FEDERAL RELATIONS LUNCHEON: A LOOK AT THE 2020 POLITICAL LANDSCAPE

This presentation is divided into two parts. The first provides an overview of the national political landscape for 2020, reviewing polling data to look at federal offices and the prospects for continuity and change in government in the 2020 elections. The second portion focuses on public opinion on a range of education issues, which may include funding, curricula, teacher pay and labor issues, charter schools, technology, safety, parental involvement, class size, sex education and other current topics.

STRENGTHENING SUPERINTENDENT EARLY CHILDHOOD LEADERSHIP SKILLS

Take an in-depth look at the current leadership frameworks and research being used to build programs and networks that support early childhood education. Explore the newly co-published (AASA and NAEYC) systemic Early Learning District Self-Assessment Tool (ELDSAT), which is a baseline self-assessment that allows superintendents and district-level leaders to review their own district programs and emulate best practices and research-based measurements. In addition to receiving the ELDSAT, learn about case studies, partnerships and professional resources as you begin transforming how early childhood education is perceived, implemented and delivered in your districts.

Presenters:
Deborah Bergeron, Director, Office of Head Start, Administration for Children and Families, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Washington, DC

BUILDING SYSTEM-WIDE INSTRUCTIONAL LEADERSHIP CAPACITY FOR STUDENT SUCCESS

Central office leaders are challenged to develop and sustain a system of professional learning for principals that equips school leaders with instructional leadership knowledge, skills and habits that can affect teaching practice and student learning. Learn how leaders from Lake County, FL, and Nampa, ID, have learned alongside school leaders to develop a common language and shared vision for high-quality instruction; nonjudgmental methods for observing and analyzing instruction; and transformative skills in providing targeted feedback and planning professional learning. Learn how these leaders led these efforts in ways that helped develop a collaborative professional learning community focused on student learning, while also building a broader, deeper culture of public practice. In this hands-on session, assess the current state of instructional leadership in your district while also engaging ideas that will help you consider next steps.

Presenters:
Michele Mason, Director of Instructional Leadership, UW Center for Educational Leadership, Seattle, WA
Emily Weiskopf, Chief of Transformation, Lake County Schools, Tavares, FL
BRIDGING THE GAP BETWEEN SCHOOL AND COMMUNITY WITH ENTREPRENEURIAL EDUCATION

Learn how an entrepreneurial experiential course inspires students to choose their own educational path while blending teacher-led instruction and business community expertise. The presentation highlights student success stories and allows participants to see how this program has bridged the gap between school and community. It highlights how the program connects schools and community beyond traditional roles, motivates schools to travel an authentic path to learning, and empowers students to discover their own solutions and pathways to success from the perspectives of both a large suburban district and small rural district.

Presenters:
Jason Callahan, Superintendent, Wabash City Schools, Wabash, IN
Brian Harris, Superintendent, Barrington 220 School District, Barrington, IL
Steve McWilliams, Principal, Barrington High School, Barrington, IL

OUR CHILDREN ARE OUR FUTURE

Our children are not just their own futures — they are our future. For our children’s sake and for the sake of our nation, we must prepare our students for the future, not the past. Learn how advancing technologies and the increased use of data analytics are (and will continue to) fundamentally changing how we work, interact, communicate and manage our personal health. In doing so, the disconnect between the skills and knowledge we now teach and those needed for success and independence in a looming future will be unambiguously clear. Less clear is how to close that disconnect. Yet, we are in a literal race against time. This is the year we must decide to act for impact. Move your classroom and your school into the future unfolding before our eyes.

Presenter:
Bill Doggett, Founder and Chairman, International Center of Leadership in Education, Rexford, NY

UTILIZING STEAM: TRANSFORMING THE SUMMER SLUMP INTO A SUMMER BUMP

Wichita Public Schools has been attacking the summer learning gap with its innovative K–5 Summer STEM and Arts Academy. This six-week program focuses on maintaining and improving reading and math readiness for all students. Not only are students challenged in the areas of math and reading, they also enjoy additional opportunities to explore the connections between their core classes and fields like engineering, fine arts, robotics, drone technology, coding and STEM challenges. All students who participate in the Summer STEM and Arts Academy come from the district’s at-risk campuses. The district does not view the students as “at risk,” but rather as opportunity students who, with the proper supports and highly effective teachers, can succeed.

Presenters:
Phyllis Cottner, Magnet Department Curriculum Lead, Wichita Public Schools, Wichita, KS
Terrell Davis, Executive Director of Public Affairs, Wichita Public Schools, Wichita, KS
Benjamin Reed, Program Specialist, Wichita Public Schools, Wichita, KS
Alicia Thompson, Superintendent, Wichita Public Schools, Wichita, KS

CO.LAB — A PROBLEM-BASED APPROACH TO HIGH SCHOOL FRESHMAN YEAR

The Co.Lab (or the Leyden Collaborative) is an innovative approach to freshman year. Rather than attending separate classes, Leyden freshmen are experiencing an interdisciplinary, problem-based curriculum with an emphasis on relevancy and authenticity. Each quarter culminates in exhibitions of student work. Learn more from Leyden teachers and administrators.

Presenters:
Amy Gorzynski, Co.Lab Teacher, Leyden High School District 212, Franklin Park, IL
Chris Lange, Co.Lab Teacher, Leyden High School District 212, Franklin Park, IL

EXTRAORDINARY MEASURES FOR STATEWIDE FAMILY ENGAGEMENT AND KINDERGARTEN READINESS

What if every child entered kindergarten on day one ready to learn? What if every family had the knowledge and tools to support their child when entering school? These are the outcomes that South Carolina is driving to achieve through a statewide program focused on bringing extraordinary supports to the most impoverished families. This project endeavors to personalize instruction, engage parents and change a generation of children to be ready, literate, self-sufficient learners through meaningful differentiated instruction.

Presenters:
David Mathis, Assistant Superintendent, South Carolina Department of Education, Columbia, SC
Quincie Moore, Former Superintendent, South Carolina Department of Education, Gaffney, SC

YOU CAN’T GROW A SCHOOL FROM YOUR OFFICE

As instructional leaders, our ultimate purpose is to ensure that each teacher is increasing and expanding the capacity of each of their students. This is a challenging leadership feat, but achievable. However, it cannot be achieved from the office. This session affords instructional leaders the opportunity to reflect upon leadership best practices. Evaluate your everyday practices to determine if they align with your leadership goals and center on the growth of all. Create a plan of action designed to strengthen or change your current leadership practices and increase emphasis on growth and achievement. Elements of growth mindset, strategic planning, accountability and the power of technology are the focal points. Through the incorporation of direct instruction, collaboration and facilitation of learning, instructional leaders can be empowered to foster educational environments that consistently increase the capacity of the students entrusted to them.

Kenneth Bowen, Principal, Southside Ashpole Elementary School, Rowland, NC
Cherie Graham, Principal, Lake Norman Charter School, Huntersville, NC

IT’S NOT YOU . . . ACTUALLY, IT’S YOU: THE ART OF HELPING PEOPLE CHANGE

Is allegiance to the status quo paralyzing your organization? Are you tired of settling for compliance? Do you crave committed and needed change? This session illuminates the hidden human drivers of resistance and how to neutralize them in order to mobilize people. Gain proven, practical tools to influence change in individuals and across organizations. Through case studies and immediate practice and application, fully understand that to effectively influence others to change, we must let ourselves be changed, and that one of the best ways to change ourselves is to focus on others’ needs, challenges and objectives. In this session, practice and apply a set of tools to help change your own perspective with the goal of inviting others to change in ways that reduce resistance and inspire commitment rather than compliance.

TECHNOLOGY IMPROVING SCHOOL SAFETY — SAFER SCHOOLS IN AMERICA RESEARCH INITIATIVE

School safety is more than emergency preparedness and campus security; it includes digital, physical and emotional safety as well as a healthy culture and engaged community. Join us for an interactive panel presentation with AASA Solution Partner Vital Insight™, McREL and superintendents representing the 100+ districts participating in the Safer Schools in America Research Initiative. They share what they are learning in the largest national study on how to make schools safer and provide an environment conducive to teaching and learning. The elements of school safety; the wide variety of safety solutions; their actual selection process; the impact of change readiness and implementation science; the impact of the technology on safety; and what is working and what is not are discussed as well as best practices, lessons learned, resources for working with vendors and do’s and don’ts.

PREP, PLANNING & HOMEWORK: TIMING YOUR NEXT CAREER MOVE

Knowing when, knowing where and knowing how to make your next career move takes time, energy and resources. Learn how timing, planning and a lot of homework can pay off when making your next career move. Topics discussed include experience and energy, overcoming career “bumps” and positioning against the competition. Time is allotted for questions and answers.

COACH AND MENTOR FUTURE DISTRICT LEADERS USING VIDEO

We often focus professional development and coaching efforts on teachers — not necessarily school leaders. If we want to gain trust from teachers, we must lead by example. Guilford Public Schools has been using video as a tool to help coaches and principals grow by encouraging them to self-reflect and share their practice with peers and with the superintendent. Results are already being seen after just one year. The presenter shares lessons learned and what it means to be “confidently vulnerable.”

IMPACT AID 101

Does your school district serve military-connected students or children living on Indian lands? Or does the federal government own land in your district? If so, you may qualify for Impact Aid, a federal education program that reimburses school districts for the lost revenue and additional costs associated with the presence of nontaxable federal property. Join leaders of school districts receiving these funds for an overview of the program (which is Title VII of ESSA), including who is eligible, how to apply, what funds can be used for, how to maximize your payment and more.

Presenters:

ROI: A SCHOOL DISTRICT MODEL FOR ALIGNING RESOURCES TO PRIORITIES AND IMPACT

School districts face a continual push to address new and growing needs within a climate of stagnating or slow-growing budgets. To address both pressing and significant needs, school districts must find new dollars to expand the operating budget or systematically evaluate how old dollars are being spent to maximize available dollars. Creating a better understanding of the relation between expenditures and outcomes can improve a district’s ability to evaluate the efficacy of dollars spent and, in turn, guide informed decisions about resource allocation and reallocation in relation to priorities. This presentation describes a novel return on investment approach that Fairfax County Public Schools designed and implemented to measure the impact of its spending and support funding decisions. The ROI process, which is used to assess and redeploy resources in relation to priorities identified in the district’s strategic plan, targets strategic use of a school district’s resources.

A SMOOTH TRANSITION TO A NEW BEGINNING

A successful entry plan is key to achieving long-term success for the individual and organization. Presenters share examples from their experiences in transitioning to their new roles and provide participants with an outline for planning their own transition plans. This plan highlights who to meet, how to meet and a timeline for meeting stakeholders. Common mistakes that occur during a transition are covered to provide insight into what to expect by others during the transition. This tool supports setting reasonable and measurable goals that can be used in planning next steps. Use the information to support and guide the creation of entry plans for new employees in key positions such as principals and district administrative positions.

FOSTERING PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT FOR A MULTIGENERATIONAL WORKFORCE OF SCHOOL LEADERS

Although Millennials have been stereotyped in popular culture as the “selfie generation,” there is another side to these young professionals who are often high-achieving, confident, tenacious and progressive educators. Many Millennials in the field of school leadership are eager for new learning opportunities sooner rather than later, and generally prefer to be presented with the “big picture.” Typically, they favor shorter learning cycles, seek connections with colleagues and wish to quickly apply newly acquired knowledge. Instead of being frustrated by this reality, Chula Vista Elementary School District is finding ways to support the leadership interests of Millennials while continuing to recognize, reward and motivate leaders from a multigenerational workforce. To maximize leader effectiveness, the district strives to understand and implement practices that accommodate principals’ generational preferences, differences and similarities, while maintaining focus on the larger and overarching vision of a school and the district.

LEADING CHANGE THROUGH SERVICE

Mahatma Gandhi said the best way to find yourself is to lose yourself in the service of others. Leaders understand that enduring and impactful organizational change is difficult to accomplish. Service to other educators is a powerful approach to naturally promote professional reflection and intentional change. Community High School District 117 developed a service program, Relief through Leadership (RTL), to assist communities, schools and teachers in Puerto Rico impacted by poverty and recent hurricanes. Supported by the board of education, a group of dedicated educators raised money through civic and corporate sponsors to provide refurbished technology to schools and instructional strategies to teachers. Teams of teachers skilled in instructional technologies developed/delivered a one-week training to their colleagues in Puerto Rico. Learn how the collective planning and curriculum development coupled with the weeklong service project in Puerto Rico has positively changed the participating educators and sponsors.

INVESTING IN YOUR TEACHERS AND STUDENTS THROUGH NATIONAL BOARD CERTIFICATION

Every student should have access to accomplished teachers who have demonstrated their expertise through National Board Certification. Research shows board-certified teachers produce an additional one to two months of learning gains and achieve higher rates of deeper learning. Hear how one district invested in its teachers and students by funding every teacher who committed to completing the rigorous board certification process. Increase your understanding of how National Board Certified-teachers can support districts with recruiting, developing and retaining high-quality teachers; learn how the redesigned National Board Certification process can be used by schools and districts to enhance professional learning communities and districtwide professional development; explore strategies that promote board certification and opportunities to provide financial support to teachers pursuing board certification through federal grants; connect board certification to district teacher quality priority areas.

COMPUTER SCIENCE FOR ALL — SUPERINTENDENT PANEL

Increasingly, the world we live in runs on computer code. Learning to code develops students into logical thinkers, problem solvers, creators and collaborators. Providing computer science for all in elementary school ensures every student has equitable access to this crucial 21st-century skill. Implementing districtwide coding initiatives brings considerable challenges and requires a systematic district approach. Superintendents share how their teams introduced districtwide computer science in their unique and vastly different districts. Leave thinking about different ways to implement a computer science initiative and how your district can teach every student to code.

STRATEGIC DASHBOARD — STRATEGIC LEADERSHIP

The ability to rigorously document and transparently communicate the impact public schools are having on student outcomes is quickly emerging as a critical priority for school leaders. The strategic dashboard is a powerful tool for education leaders to govern implementation of the district’s strategic plan and to evaluate the impact that strategic goals are having on student, financial and other system outcomes. This session assists education leaders in creating a clear and compelling vision for their unique strategic dashboard.

LEADING WITH HEART BEFORE, DURING AND AFTER A TEACHER STRIKE

Learn how a new superintendent in Washington state led her district through a teacher strike and then successfully built strong relationships, credibility, trust and hope throughout the organization and the community during the following school year. The Washougal School District superintendent shares the strategies she used to heal a fractured community and rebuild a positive culture within the organization. She discusses her use of authenticity, straight-talk, visibility, courage, inspirational messaging and her singing talent to help move her district into position as one of the top performers in the state.

BUILDING LEADERSHIP CAPACITY AND SUCCESSION PLANNING: BEING FUTURE READY

Leaders have the responsibility to motivate teachers and administrators by sharing their experiences and providing opportunities for growth. By developing different skill sets, we can not only drive positive change throughout our districts, but we can prepare our best and brightest people to assume key roles when we move on to greener pastures. Presenters share key steps they have taken to train peak performers, offer valuable feedback to protégés, and proactively develop a succession plan to address the inevitable changes that occur as people retire or leave your district. Learn that a good succession plan includes strategies for mentoring, job shadowing, emotional intelligence and technical skills.

AIM FOR EXCELLENCE: TRANSFORMING SCHOOLS THROUGH LEADERSHIP PIPELINE DEVELOPMENT

Research clearly supports the need for effective teachers in every classroom, but that alone is not enough to ensure students receive excellent instruction. Learn how members of the Urban Superintendents Academy worked to develop and implement an Aspiring Leadership Academy in Selma City Schools. Plagued with leadership and teacher turnover along with a recent state takeover, this high-poverty, crime-riddled district was in great need of leadership effectiveness and stability. With a new strategic plan in place, Selma has implemented this three-phased approach to leader development that includes district partnering, face-to-face sessions, coaching, essential experiences and a required School Improvement Project. Attracting and retaining high-quality teachers and leaders depends on having teams of leaders who understand and embrace the role of instructional leader.

RESPONDING TO THE ADOLESCENT MENTAL HEALTH CRISIS

Over the past year, more than a third of students aged 14–18 experienced a mental health-related crisis. Rates of anxiety, depression and attempted suicide among adolescents have also been steadily on the rise, and this issue affects virtually every district in the nation. EAB’s latest research identifies four critical areas that districts must address to effectively support students in crisis, and details proven strategies that you can deploy to build a coordinated system of mental health care. This session provides essential insights and replicable solutions that can help your district to improve student outcomes and save lives.

ROOM 6B, Section 2

LEVEL UP LANGUAGE AND LITERACY TO CLOSE THE ACHIEVEMENT GAP

Children from low-income environments come to school with fewer words and less exposure to high-level language. This language gap before kindergarten contributes to the achievement gap in schools. Analyze the levels of language upon which college- and career-ready standards are based. Explore ways to level up school and district expectations, methods and strategies by immersing students in the effective and meaningful use of language to acquire, expand and demonstrate knowledge and critical thinking.

Presenters:
Teresa Hill, Superintendent, South Holland School District 151, South Holland, IL
Chevia Rush, Assistant Principal, South Holland School District 151, South Holland, IL

STREAM) UPGRADING LEARNING AND TRANSFORMING SPACES

Learn how school districts partner with community leaders to create an interdisciplinary space that supports brainstorming, invention, research, creation and presentation so that learning is authentic engaging and meaningful. STREAM — science, technology, research, engineering, arts and mathematics — is a culture of learning that requires students to be innovators and problem solvers. This new culture of STREAM includes supporting students to be research experts, critical thinkers and creators of solutions. This presentation shares information on a capstone-like curriculum that includes a fabrication lab, audio lab, video lab, presentation room and brainstorm areas.

Presenters:
Susan Lang, Retired Superintendent, Wyoming City Schools, Wyoming, OH, and President of K–12 Education, Newsbank, Naples, FL
Michelle Shafer, Director of Teaching and Learning, Maumee City Schools, Maumee, OH

BOLD WOMEN — BOLD COFFEE NETWORKING BREAKFAST

Join AASA President Deb Kerr and other female leaders in education for a networking breakfast! The session features internationally recognized educational leader and practitioner Linda Darling-Hammond, a former Stanford professor, leading researcher and currently serving as the president of California’s State Board of Education. Along with the opportunity to be inspired by Darling-Hammond, other leaders share their stories of being brave, bold and brilliant in their work.

EVIDENCE-BASED LEADERSHIP: EVALUATING SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT INITIATIVES USING ADVANCED ANALYTICS

Today’s accountability environment is exerting additional pressure on local school districts and leaders to document the impact of their programs and expenditures. Leaders must create an infrastructure where data can be efficiently collected and accurately analyzed to support evidence-based decisions and inform how resources should be allocated to improve student learning and ensure educational equity. Presenters discuss how their districts are using the cycle of inquiry and action research to gain better visibility into the whole child for every child and making decisions based on science and evidence.

Presenters:
Matthew Joynt, Superintendent, Mequon-Thiensville School District, Mequon, WI
Demond Means, Superintendent, Clarke County School District, Athens, GA
Kate Storey, Senior Associate, ECRA Group, Schaumburg, IL

Making Transformative Change a Reality

Are you ready to make that big shift happen? Ohio’s Fairview Park City Schools has been identified as one of only eight 2019 ICLE Innovative Districts in the country by the International Center for Leadership in Education. Break through those change barriers without breaking your budget or starting labor wars. (OK, there may be a few skirmishes!) Receive immediately applicable, innovative strategies to turbocharge your leadership engine, make the colossal shifts in teaching and learning you’ve always wanted, balance (or not) high tech with high touch and achieve that goal of all truly meaning all. Fasten your seat belts and start your engines as we make change happen!

Presenters:
- Sarah Eppller, Teacher of the Year, Fairview Park City Schools, Fairview Park, OH
- Chris Vicha, 6-12 Campus Principal, Fairview Park City Schools, Fairview Park, OH
- Bill Wagner, Superintendent, Fairview Park City Schools, Fairview Park, OH
- Melanie Wightman, Director of Teaching & Learning, Fairview Park City Schools, Fairview Park, OH

ROOM 6B, Section 5

An Innovative Solution: Leading the Movement from At-Risk to Opportunity

Last school year, Wichita Public Schools implemented the Opportunity Teacher Leader Academy to provide selective, rigorous leadership training for identified teacher leaders who, through their impact, will provide an equitable educational environment for all students. Wichita Public Schools does not see their at-risk student population as those who are severely under-performing or those who are not reachable; rather, they see them as an opportunity for significant growth and success. With the support of graduate-level instruction and a close community culture, the selected staff has shown great gains in their leadership abilities and are already making positive changes in their buildings for the benefit of all students.

Presenters:
- Phyllis Cottner, Magnet Department Curriculum Lead, Wichita Public Schools, Wichita, KS
- Terrell Davis, Executive Director of Public Affairs and Special Projects, Wichita Public Schools, Wichita, KS
- Benjamin Reed, Program Specialist, Wichita Public Schools, Wichita, KS
- Alicia Thompson, Superintendent, Wichita Public Schools, Wichita, KS

ROOM 1B

Building School Culture from the Inside Out

Building a strong school culture should be the first priority of every school leader. It is proven to decrease bullying, enhance academic performance and increase student engagement. This session reveals a framework for giving students a voice and empowering them to take ownership of their school, so you won’t have to do it all alone! Led by award-winning producer and nationally certified counselor JC Pohl, this session focuses on tested methods that build resiliency, develop positive culture, and connect students across your campus and community.

Presenters:
- JC Pohl, LMFT, President and CEO, TEEN TRUTH, Austin, TX
- Matt Waldschmidt, National Sales Manager, Lifetouch, Chicago, IL

ROOM 8
BUILDING SYSTEMS FOR LONG-TERM PRINCIPAL LEARNING AND SUPPORT

What comes after building the capacity of principal supervisors? Developing systems that ensure that principals constantly get the professional learning and support they need to successfully lead their schools! Learn how leaders in Bellevue, WA, and Greenville County, SC, went beyond providing professional development for principal supervisors to create central offices that consistently think about what principals need next. Hear how these districts came to consensus on the role of principals, developed consistent routines and practices for principal supervisors, and developed coherent professional learning for principals that goes beyond one-on-one work with principal supervisors. In addition to hearing from district leaders, engage with tools that can help you assess your current state of principal support, generate ideas for action and learning, as well as consider concrete next steps to take upon returning home.

Presenters:
Sandy Austin, Project Director, UW Center for Educational Leadership, Seattle, WA
Eva Collins, Deputy Superintendent, Bellevue School District, Bellevue, WA
Karen Kapp, Director of Staff and Leadership Development, Greenville County Schools, Greenville, SC
Max Silverman, Executive Director, UW Center for Educational Leadership, Seattle, WA

ROOM 11B
LEVERAGING SEL TO SUPPORT STUDENTS WHO EXPERIENCE TRAUMA

New Hanover County Schools has partnered with RTI International’s Center for Education and two other North Carolina school districts, Johnston County Public Schools and Surry County Schools, to positively support youth behavior by promoting evidence-based adult practices that cultivate safe and supportive schools. When embraced by all hands — teachers, principals, counselors, SROs and community members — these practices foster stronger adult–student relationships to better support students who have experienced trauma. During this session, district leaders and RTI researchers share promising practices for implementing social and emotional learning strategies.

Presenters:
Fredrica Nash, Education Consultant, RTI International, Durham, NC
Angela Quick, Director, RTI International, Durham, NC
Julie Varnam, Assistant Superintendent of Student Support Services, New Hanover County Schools, Wilmington, NC

ROOM 5A
CTE: EXPANDING OPTIONS FOR ALL STUDENTS AND CREATING PATHWAYS FOR SUCCESS

More and more districts across the country are recognizing the value of career and technical education. They are expanding CTE programs and creating programs of study that are rigorous and aligned with postsecondary education and career pathways. Recent research has found that students who concentrate in CTE are more likely to go to college than otherwise equivalent students who do not, and a quality CTE program can reduce the dropout rate by as much as 6%. Join presenters from the Association for Career & Technical Education and three leading school districts for a discussion on the benefits of a rigorous CTE program to increase opportunities for all students while maximizing academic outcomes.

Presenters:
Brian Bachtel, Director of Career Technical Education, Kent City Schools, Kent, OH
Sandra Cerny, CTE Credentialed Teacher, Temecula Unified School District, Temecula, CA
Michael Connet, Associate Deputy Executive Director, Association for Career & Technical Education, Alexandria, VA
Kerrie Torres, Assistant Superintendent, Brea Olinda Unified School District, Brea, CA

ROOM 5B
LAYING THE FOUNDATION FOR CULTURALLY RESPONSIVE PRACTICES IN VIRGINIA BEACH CITY PUBLIC SCHOOLS

A vision for cultural responsiveness starts at the top. This session outlines how Virginia Beach City Public Schools integrated culturally responsive practices to respond to the diverse needs of students in the school district. Engage in thoughtful reflection and discuss ways to leverage instructional leadership to foster a systematic approach to cultural responsiveness.

Presenters:
Nicole DeVries, Director of K-12 and Gifted Programs, Virginia Beach City Public Schools, Virginia Beach, VA
LaQuiche Parrott, Director of Opportunity and Achievement, Virginia Beach City Public Schools, Virginia Beach, VA
Kipp Rogers, Chief Academic Officer, Virginia Beach City Public Schools, Virginia Beach, VA
Aaron Spence, Superintendent, Virginia Beach City Public Schools, Virginia Beach, VA

SUPERINTENDENTS WHO BLOG
The AASA website maintains a directory of all superintendents who blog about professional issues in school system leadership. If you’d like to be added to the list, contact magazine@aasa.org.
ROOM 2

MAKE A SMOOTH EXIT WITH AN EFFECTIVE SUCCESSION PLAN

Much has been written about entry plans to new positions, but little is devoted to preparing for one’s departure from the district. The outgoing superintendent can be a major contributor to an optimum succession. The transition plan can also be a beneficial resource for the incoming superintendent who needs access to both people and data. Three successful veteran superintendents — one current and two mentors/instructors in the AASA-USC Urban Superintendents Academy Program — offer practical advice on how to get the job and then design and implement a transition plan. Learn about the key elements of a transition plan through a suggested model, engage in interactive activities that include working on a preliminary transition plan, and have the opportunity to share related experiences.

Presenters:
Carmella Franco, Retired Superintendent and Mentor, AASA/USC Urban Superintendents Academy Program, Whittier, CA
Maria Ott, Clinical Professor and Retired Superintendent, USC Rossier School of Education, Los Angeles, CA
Ruth Perez, Superintendent, Paramount Unified School District, Paramount, CA

ROOM 3

COUNTING YOUNG CHILDREN IN THE 2020 CENSUS: WHAT SUPERINTENDENTS CAN DO

In 2010, the decennial census missed more than 2 million young children, or one in 10. Because decennial census data are used to allocate Title 1 and special education funding, many school districts did not receive their fair share of federal funding. Review what superintendents can do to ensure all kids are counted in 2020. Learn which children are missed and why, and become familiar with tools that superintendents can use to improve the count in their districts with just a little effort and staff time.

Presenter:
Deborah Stein, Network Director, Partnership for America’s Children, Washington, DC

ROOM 4

YOUTH APPRENTICESHIP PATHWAYS FOR STUDENT SUCCESS

AASA and the United States Department of Labor are working together to promote youth apprenticeships — an exciting career and college readiness pathway with the potential to impact millions of students. This session shares videos and toolkit resources developed from site visits and summits held across the country and shares insights from leaders of Denver Public Schools and the Cherry Creek School District on the success and impact of youth apprenticeships in Colorado.

Presenters:
Sarah Grobbel, Assistant Superintendent of Career and Innovation, Cherry Creek School District, Greenwood Village, CO
Bryan Joffe, Project Director, AASA, Alexandria, VA
Bernard McCune, Senior Executive Director, Denver Public Schools, Denver, CO

ROOM 11A

PREPARING FOR THE ADMINISTRATIVE JOB SEARCH

Learn how to make a good first impression in your job search. Presenters cover how to research potential job openings, prepare a letter of application and resume, network effectively, prepare for the interview, use effective interviewing techniques and negotiate a contract.

Presenters:
Thomas Jacobson, CEO, McPherson & Jacobson, LLC, Omaha, NE
Steve Joel, Consultant, McPherson & Jacobson, LLC, Omaha, NE

ROOM 7B

INSURANCE RECOVERY FOR SCHOOL DISTRICTS

National Fire Adjustment Co., Inc. (NFA) represents school districts when insurable losses occur (i.e., fire, hurricane, wind, water, flood, explosion, collapse). At the inception of the loss, the insurance company assembles its team of experts to determine the damage assessment from their perspective and minimize the insurance recovery. NFA is an advocate for school districts and attempt to maximize what they are entitled to under the terms and conditions of insuring agreements. NFA assembles its team of experts (i.e., building estimators, contents estimators and CPAs) to ensure districts are utilizing all areas of the insurance policy and maximizing the TOTAL claim recovery.

Presenter:
John Donnelley, Executive Director, National Fire Adjustment Co., Inc., Amherst, NY
ROOM 10
THE HAPPINESS ADVANTAGE IN EDUCATION: CREATING POSITIVE, HIGH-PERFORMING SCHOOLS

Today the world’s best schools are engaged in creating positive cultures to enhance education. Positive environments are performance enhancers. They are characterized by higher productivity, less turnover and absenteeism, and more resilient cultures. Based on Harvard positive psychology expert Shawn Achor’s best-selling book The Happiness Advantage, this session shares how the latest research on positive psychology in education can be applied to the benefit of your district. Discover new ways in which you can achieve greater happiness for yourself and realize your potential to impact others. Leave with the mindset and skillset to create positive change around you, enhancing your own well-being and that of others.

Presenter:
Devin Hughes, Chief Inspiration Officer, ITLN, San Diego, CA

ROOM 9
SCHOOL SAFETY: ASSURED PEACE OF MIND AND PROTECTION FROM COMMON AND EXTREME VIOLENCE WITH SMART SHIELD

Armor At Hand introduces the Smart Shield, a new defensive way to be more prepared and equipped to defend against violence. The Smart Shield offers instant physical protection and real-time notification to staff, security resource officers (SROs) and first responders in the event of a potentially harmful situation. A demo of the Smart Shield’s ability to provide protection, send smart alerts and illustrate how help is on the way is provided at this session. Hands-on training sessions are also available after the Q&A to help people understand how best to use the Smart Shield. Overall, the Smart Shield offers a new level of preparedness and peace of mind at a lower cost.

KEYNOTE
THE POSSIBILITIES AND CHALLENGES OF PERSONALIZING EDUCATION

Grounded in the sciences of learning and development, Linda Darling-Hammond discusses why and how thoughtful personalization, through strong relationships and connections to learners’ prior knowledge and experiences, is critical to effective education and can help reverse the results of adverse conditions in children’s lives. Understand how thoughtless approaches to “personalization” that substitute technology for teachers and reduce opportunities for collaboration can undermine learning. The goal of the discussion is to help leaders consider how to design schools and systems for effective personalization that supports student success for the wide range of learners in today’s schools.

BLESSINGS IN A BACKPACK STUFFING

Approximately 13 million children struggle with hunger on a regular basis. AASA and Sourcewell are proud to partner with Blessings in a Backpack (BIB) during the 2020 National Conference on Education to help provide food on weekends for elementary students who qualify for their schools’ free and reduced-price meal program. We will be stuffing bags in Booth 247 on the Exhibit Hall floor to be donated to a local San Diego school. Please come volunteer!

THE POWER BEHIND COLLABORATIVE AND INNOVATIVE DISTRICT AND SCHOOL LEADERS

District and school leaders showcase how collaborative and reflective structures have impacted the district’s ability to scale instructional initiatives. Build your knowledge around the journey of the district and have access to the district’s processes and tools that have allowed innovative change management to happen effectively. This session is for district and school leaders who are looking for a way to explore risk-taking environments, build stronger communities of best practices, and create learning cycles that impact learning environments.

Presenters:
Garett Brazina, Principal, Seldens Landing Elementary School, Leesburg, VA
Kelly Freiheit, Associate Partner, Education Elements, Inc., Washington, DC
Elaine Layman, Elementary Supervisor, Loudoun County Public Schools, Ashburn, VA
Neil Slevin, Director of Teaching and Learning, Loudoun County Public Schools, Ashburn, VA

THE LITERACY IMPERATIVE

Recent NAEP scores have confirmed what many have long suspected — that our approach to providing universal literacy is failing too many children. This comes at a terrible time for our children who are going to be entering into a workforce that requires ever higher literacy and the associated critical thinking skills. Join Dr. Benjamin Heuston, CEO of Waterford.org, to learn about effective policies and practices to help provide literacy for all children in your district.

GREEN SCHOOLS: HEALTHY CHILDREN, INNOVATIVE PROGRAMMING, SAVING MONEY AND RESOURCES

Encinitas Union School District, CA, and Whitefish School District, MT, have prioritized sustainability, resulting in the conservation of resources, improvement of health and wellness, and a drive for innovative learning. Together, they are collaborating on best practices in sustainability education as catalyst schools through the Green Schools National Network. Through targeted and collaborative practices that rely on feedback and data, such as classroom energy management plans and vermicomposting, these districts are reducing their expenditures and saving resources. Learn the key levers these two districts used to launch and sustain green success through a systems approach. Additionally, learn about collaboration opportunities for districts starting or continuing this transformational change. Leave with connections to support your district’s efforts to be green, healthy and sustainable. Whether a large district or a rural district, this session provides concrete actions steps to foster sustainable practices.

Presenters:
Timothy Baird, Retired Superintendent, Encinitas Union School District, Encinitas, CA
Ryder Delaloye, Director, Whitefish School District, Whitefish, MT
Andree Grey, Superintendent, Encinitas Union School District, Encinitas, CA
WHAT IF EVERY CHILD CAME TO KINDERGARTEN ON DAY 1 READY TO LEARN

Wichita Falls Independent School District in Texas believes every student deserves to begin his or her academic career at the same starting line. It’s an issue of fairness and equity, certainly, but it’s also a practical matter. When students fall behind in the earliest years of their education, around ages 5–7, it becomes much more difficult to bring them to grade-level reading as they grow. Simply put, the biggest bang for our buck in developing strong students across grade levels comes from starting early and making sure they have a solid foundation. By combining federal, state and district funds and bringing in innovation, we have been able to serve 95% of entering kindergartners prior to starting kindergarten.

Presenters:
Michael Kuhrt, Superintendent, Wichita Falls Independent School District, Wichita Falls, TX
Howard Stephenson, Former Utah State Senator, Draper, UT

Aiken Works — Preparing Tomorrow’s Workforce for Postsecondary Success

Timely, dedicated, efficient and creative employees are essential to prosperous organizations. Aiken Works is a collaborative to redefine individual success and provide opportunities to ensure highly competent future employees. Aiken Works partners with local employers to prepare students for the workforce through authentic hands-on experiences, including registered apprenticeships, internships, job shadows and cooperative education. The initiative allows Aiken County’s students to not only graduate with credentials, but also develop employable skill sets while building a highly capable future workforce for the community. Part marketing initiative, part framework for work-based learning, Aiken Works aims to encourage multiple pathways to postsecondary success. This session focuses on the principles and goals behind Aiken Works, as well as the community collaborative effort process. Presenters draw from personal backgrounds and experiences as workforce development specialists and educators to bring this community collaborative effort to life.

Strategically Boost Morale in Your Schools and Across the District!

Is morale in your district at an all-time low? Have you or your team focused any time and energy to explore the many facets of morale? Are you open to listening to the concerns and issues from your faculty and staff as well as participating in difficult conversations centered around feelings, perceptions and ways to improve? This session shares a blueprint for school and district leaders who are willing to address the moving target and emotional topic of morale. Examples from two school districts are shared and articles and resources are provided to help guide courageous leaders who are willing to work alongside faculty and staff and empower key staff to take action toward boosting morale in their districts. Attending this session and exploring the topic of morale with your faculty and staff is the first positive step to improvement!

Beapreneur, Aypreneur

The job market is changing at unprecedented levels: 47% of U.S. jobs are at high risk of automation in the next few decades. We have hardly an idea of what kind of jobs our kindergarteners will have when they grow up, so we must teach them how to survive in an ever-changing economy. The presenter encourages you and your teams to beapreneur, anyapreneur. Pick what gives you energy, what excites you, what makes your heart beat just a little faster, and then figure out how to innovate, disrupt and do better, bolder things with that. When we don’t know what jobs are going to exist 10 years from now, we have to teach kids to create their own!

EXPANDING ACCESS, OUTCOMES AND RIGOR WITH AN INTERNATIONAL CURRICULUM

The School District of Palm Beach County has narrowed the opportunity gap in postsecondary preparedness and graduation rates among students of diverse backgrounds by increasing both participation and performance in accelerated course enrollment and outcomes. Results include a 91% graduation rate, a 15.6% increase in participation in accelerated courses overall, and a steadily increasing success rate on accelerated end-of-course assessments — from 50% to 79%. Learn how this large urban district accomplished this task by implementing an internationally recognized program of instruction and assessment that opens access and opportunities to rigorous coursework and potential for earning college credit, while being inclusive of students from a wide variety of backgrounds. Further, hear from a higher education leader about how this program prepares students for postsecondary success.

INNOVATION ACROSS THE CURVE: SHIFTING PEDAGOGY IN EVERY CLASSROOM

More schools are investing in technology; however, providing devices without support can at best result in minor change in student outcomes and at worst harm them. Teachers need support to shift their skillset and mindset to realize the full impact of these tools. This takes more than a day of professional development. It takes a program that provides ongoing support and addresses the need for a shift in thinking. Hear about successes from schools engaging in such a program and explore how to positively impact your schools and adopt future-ready pedagogies.

AT YOUR SERVICE . . . OR NOT?

In this era of competition from charters, privates and parochials, every public school system needs to embrace a customer service culture that provides a welcoming experience to all families and students. Great customer service conveys that schools care deeply about the relationship with families and students and it increases parent involvement in their children’s education. Hear about actual “mystery shopping” experiences in schools and learn what makes a great customer experience in the front office, over the phone and through email. Eight essential areas grounded in research are explored that will guide school leaders to reflect on their own school system’s customer service culture, commitment and practices. Then, learn what it takes to move your school system from ordinary to exemplary in customer service and become the top choice for every family.

EVERY STUDENT BELONGS: PERSONALIZING STUDENT SUPPORTS IN OGDEN SCHOOL DISTRICT
At Ogden School District in Utah, students enter the school system at vastly different academic levels and experience struggles that notably differ from one student to another. The majority of the 11,500 students in the district live in poverty, and the district has identified high rates of chronic absenteeism, high-school dropout, teenage pregnancy and suicide. Faced with these challenges, Ogden made it a strategic focus to personalize student supports with a mission to improve academic outcomes, including goals of double-digit increases in graduation and on-track literacy rates.

Explore how Ogden School District is improving student outcomes by:
- Building a common system and language to evaluate student progress across academics, behavior, attendance and social-emotional learning
- Ensuring students have a solid relationship with at least one adult at their school, improving sense of belonging, and connecting relationships to increased graduation rates
- Intervening early and proactively to change the trajectory of student outcomes and to provide a skillset for success by building and scaling a district-wide Multi-Tiered System of Supports (MTSS)

DIGITAL EQUITY: EFFECTIVE STRATEGIES FOR SOLVING THE HOMEWORK GAP

Digital equity has been called the civil rights issue of our time. Students without home access to high-quality broadband connectivity are at a disadvantage, unable to realize the full power of digital learning. This discrepancy has been labeled as “the homework gap.” Five million households with school-age children do not have high-speed internet service at home. Low-income households — especially families in black and Hispanic homes — make up a disproportionate share of that 5 million. In this interactive conversation, learn how innovative superintendents are leveraging a wide variety of solutions to meet the challenges of digital equity in their school districts. Internal policies and practices as well as strategies involving partnerships with local businesses and community groups are shared.

CONTINUOUS IMPROVEMENT: THE POWER OF COLLECTIVE LEADERSHIP AND COLLABORATIVE LEARNING

School and district leaders know the importance of having a system of continuous improvement and a school culture that embraces growth to advance student achievement. There are two key factors in developing those elements. First, schools must have effective leadership teams that enlist teacher leaders, principals and district administrators as instructional leaders to drive improvement and sustain student gains. Second, teachers need opportunities to improve their practice through collaborative professional learning with follow-up and coaching in the classroom to apply that learning. This session walks through steps district leaders can take to establish effective leadership and professional learning teams and to develop an infrastructure of teacher leaders who serve on school leadership teams and deliver quality professional learning, coaching and mentorship for their peers. Leave with a plan for developing collective leadership and collaborative learning teams and understand the how to utilize teacher leaders in the process.

HEALING OUR SYSTEMS AND MAKING IMPROVEMENT STICK

Leaders thrive when students and staff improve. We’ve chased fragmented initiatives in the hope of building a strong context for learning. Initiatives come and go with little impact on learning results or school culture. Research indicates that 70% of all change efforts fail. Success is tied to how the entire system behaves. Failure is rooted in broken systems and processes used to do the work, not the people themselves. Stated simply: We have good people with good intent working in broken systems. Learn why building a culture for continuous improvement means leaders and staff at every level of the organization have the mindsets and skillsets of improvement. They know how to reduce hassle within the system and work together to remove barriers for students, staff, families and the community. They routinely solve the problems that interfere with learning and work, hard wiring improved system processes and achieving results.

ANIMATION STORY TELLING MOTIVATES STUDENTS TO SUCCEED AT WRITING

Wonder Media Story Maker® is an authentic project-based writing solution where students collaborate, plan, research and write original stories based on classroom essays and reports and then produce those stories as animated videos. This “professional animation studio” concept immerses students in a STEM-fueled work environment, providing authentic hands-on experience to develop vital 21st-century skills, such as communication, critical thinking and problem-solving. Research proves that a 1-percentage-point increase in a student’s score on the motivation index is associated with a 6-point increase in reading achievement. Stories are powerful learning tools that inspire personal growth, empathy and the motivation to succeed. Add animation as the creative outlet and you will notice a measurable difference in a student’s approach to learning. As the former CEO of Klasky Csupo, the studio that created Rugrats and The Wild Thornberrys, Terry Thoren is an expert on quality storytelling through animation.

HOW CURRICULUM AND INSTRUCTION CAN OPEN THE DOOR TO IMPROVEMENT

What happens when you put curriculum and instruction first? It’s been said that one of the hardest systems to change is what goes on in the black box behind the classroom door in America’s secondary schools. In one of the poorest and most segregated urban communities in America, a team is working to change the culture of secondary teachers as independent contractors. Learn how university support, community investment, teacher leadership, key partnerships and collaborative planning are coming together to crack the door. The district’s graduation rate increased almost 30 percentage points in three years and students’ literacy is increasing by two years or more per year. Find out how persistent attention to collaborative curriculum development and specific instructional practices translate to real growth. Presenters are honest about challenges and “not yets,” as well as pleasant surprises and new learnings.

DISTRICT ENGAGEMENT LEADS TO HIGH RELIABILITY SCHOOLS

The part of town students live in should not determine the quality of their education. Farmington, known for demographical diversity, significantly outperforms New Mexico peers. To ensure all Farmington schools provide meaningful and high-quality learning, district administrators conduct mini-performance audits based on the work of Marzano. To determine progress toward this strategic goal, a central office focus team of district leaders engages with schools three times a year. The team interviews teachers, parents and students; observes instruction; and reviews a variety of data, including academic achievement, discipline, attendance and building climate. These indicators are measured against a high-reliability rubric, which is used to coach school leaders on their continuous improvement journey on a monthly basis. This collaborative process aligns to school improvement plans and drives decision making in a non-evaluative fashion. Leave with an understanding of the tools, rubrics and protocols needed to replicate this process.

THE INGENUITY INITIATIVE: A CASE STUDY IN ORGANIZATIONAL ALIGNMENT

Are ingenious thinkers born that way or can ingenuity be developed? Watkins Glen CSD was interested in exploring ingenuity and entrepreneurial foundational skills that prepare students to excel in college and the workforce. District leaders did not believe their schools mirrored the environments in which ingenious thinkers currently work — in structure or function — based on student performance data, college preparedness and persistence data, feedback from employers, and student attendance. Learn about the cultural shift initiative that targeted all school staff and students PK–12. It was designed to “brand” the organization as a school of ingenuity by identifying, prioritizing, teaching, modeling, monitoring and assessing universally applicable skills that reflect ingenious thinking.

Communities in the Curriculum with Place-Based Learning

The Port Townsend School District completed a five-year implementation of an initiative to connect learning with the local community. Through this initiative, the district engages more than 80 community partners in classroom projects, trains and supports all teachers in project-based learning, and has changed the way the community engages with the schools. Learn about the way the board of directors and previous superintendent set the vision, and the new superintendent helped carry out that vision. This shift in how the community interacts with students and teachers helped create a more “outward-facing” school system and increased community support for the schools, as evidenced by passage of a $40.9M bond for a new elementary school. Walk away with ideas for how to identify and engage community partners in your district, as well as ways to support teachers in doing creative and hands-on learning.

Releasing the Hostages: Systemic Solutions to Address Behavior and Discipline

As leaders struggle to meet rigorous curriculum, testing and staffing demands with limited funding, student behavior and discipline diverts their attention from these issues. Additionally, as education leaders struggle to address significant and challenging behaviors stemming from disability and mental health concerns, students lose critical exposure to the curriculum, staff members experience significant burnout, and teachers lose critical instructional time. This “perfect storm” is complicated by a lack of funding to address mental health concerns and one-size-fits-all behavioral interventions designed to improve school climate. Through the evaluation of existing discipline models and the consideration of research-backed behavioral interventions at a systemic level, participants can improve the discourse surrounding school safety/school climate and provide a more equitable learning environment for all students.

How to Foster Diverse and Equitable Hiring of School Leaders

When Woodland School District 50 embarked on an equity journey as part of their 2018–2023 strategic plan, one of the goals was to recruit highly qualified staff who mirror the student population. Serving a 66% nonwhite population and 33% low-income population, the district was looking to change how they hired not only teachers, but district leaders as well. This session walks through how one district learned to recruit, screen, interview, select and support leadership and teacher hiring through an equity lens.

Education is rapidly changing because we are preparing for a future workforce that doesn’t exist. Engagement and collaboration with business and community has become a top priority for superintendents. As the CEO of your district, how do you leverage meaningful relationships with local businesses to impact your community? What supports drive the collaboration? Indiana answered those questions by launching the EPIC Superintendent Academy, a collaboration among the Indiana Association of Public School Superintendents, the Butler University College of Education and the Lacy School of Business to share a groundbreaking leadership excellence program for Indiana’s superintendents. Strategy, change management, building a high-performance team, budget and finance, community/stakeholder outreach, and board relations are emphasized along with collaborating with business community experts to tackle real challenges in this environment of rapid change and uncertainty. Learn how to stimulate collaboration between school districts and business communities.

HOW FOUR DISTRICTS ARE TRANSFORMING READING INSTRUCTION

Four superintendents from the Gulf to the Great Lakes will share what they’re doing in their districts to close the 3rd-grade reading gap. Research shows that few teacher preparation programs adequately train educators to teach foundational reading skills, and our elementary students pay the price. Moreover, too many principals have stopped believing that they have the power to improve reading scores. Presenters share lessons learned from embracing the science of reading in their districts. They discuss best practices to ensure that all teachers understand the fundamental science of how our brains learn to read, how that should shape instruction and, most importantly, how they’re getting buy-in to fundamentally change the way we teach reading to young children. When teachers, administrators and science are aligned, we can make sure that the 95% of students who are cognitively able to read can do so before it’s too late.

Presenters:
John Burke, Superintendent, Haysville Unified School District, Haysville, KS
Marty Crawford, Superintendent, Tyler Independent School District, Tyler, TX
David Smith, Superintendent, Evansville Vanderburgh School Corporation, Evansville, IN

INSTRUCTION DRIVES CONSTRUCTION: COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT BEYOND THE VOTE

Staying true to its master plan promise (Your Voice Matters), the Upper Arlington Board of Education has continued to engage its community, staff and students in a uniquely transparent and participatory design planning process. Authentically applying input from numerous community engagement sessions, the team cultivated a vision for the future of teaching and learning in Upper Arlington. This session explores the various elements of the design phase and how to marry changing pedagogical approaches to the facilities that support them by authentically engaging a diverse array of stakeholders. Culminating with the facility design and curriculum changes resulting from three years of master planning and design, the session shows how the engagement manifested into the types of spaces that will best support students for today and tomorrow.

SHARPENING THE EQUITY LENS: ALIGNING ACCOUNTABILITY SYSTEMS AND RESOURCE ALLOCATIONS

School systems are grappling with accountability systems that will provide them with the information they need to ensure all students are learning at the highest levels. At the same time, the Every Student Succeeds Act has created increased momentum around financial transparency, encouraging districts and communities to take a critical look at equity of their school funding. But, funding is only one piece of the equity picture. For Montgomery County Public Schools, resource equity means both how much is spent and how well it is spent. Hear how one large school system has worked to bring together an equity accountability model with an equity resource model. Together, these models connect outcomes to the student experience and support a process of continuous improvement. This truly is a story of how all means all. Walk away from this discussion with a clear understanding of resource equity, an equity model and a process to identify next steps to ensure that access, opportunities, experiences and outcomes for students are not predictable by race and income.

INDIANA’S SEL COMPETENCIES: A ROADMAP FOR TEACHING THE WHOLE CHILD

Indiana’s social-emotional learning (SEL) competencies for students in grades PK–12 were designed to address social and emotional well-being through a neurodevelopmental culturally responsive framework. The foundation for these competencies has been developed from the most current brain research, social-emotional research, trauma research and culturally responsive best practices. The SEL competencies are designed to be embedded throughout the academic day, impacting the instructional climate of a classroom. By using this whole-child approach, schools will see an increase in academic performance and emotional well-being for students and educators.

THE NATION’S REPORT CARD: DEFINING A DECADE

For the last 50 years, the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP) — or “The Nation’s Report Card” — has reported on the status of American education with assessments of 4th, 8th and 12th graders in a variety of subjects. It is regarded as the gold standard in educational assessment because it serves as an objective yardstick on the achievement and progress of American students over time. The 2020s will see NAEP make major shifts to reflect modern expectations of what American students should know and be able to do. These include significant updates to the frameworks that define the content for the NAEP reading and mathematics tests, as well as changes in the administration of NAEP that will reduce its footprint in schools across the country. Join leaders who oversee and administer NAEP to learn more about these changes and what they mean for superintendents.

INVESTING IN PRINCIPAL SUPERVISORS TO LEAD SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT

Educating all children at high levels depends largely on having effective school building principals. Yet, skill at implementing quality systems for recruiting, developing and evaluating principals is not universally strong. Superintendents and principal supervisors agree that quality principal supervision programs should be a high priority. Highly skilled principal supervisors provide on-the-job support, coaching and supervision for building leaders to lead school improvement. This session highlights strategies and tools developed by school districts and researchers with support of The Wallace Foundation that help districts select and develop principal supervisors.

PRINCIPAL BEHAVIORS AND ASSOCIATIONS WITH TEACHER MOTIVATION AND JOB SATISFACTION

This presentation explores relations among school principal leadership behavior, type of motivation experienced by teachers, and teacher job satisfaction. Research on principals’ leadership suggests transformational types of behaviors are associated with a greater sense of teacher autonomy. Furthermore, leadership style is associated with the degree to which a teacher experiences motivation as autonomous or controlling. Potential mediating effects of autonomous motivation in the relationship between school principal leadership style and teacher job satisfaction are also explored. The presentation gives school leaders new insight into leadership behaviors that were proven to boost teacher motivation and job satisfaction.

STRATEGIC PLANNING TO ADVANCE EQUITY

Given the importance of equity in facilitating the success of all students, district leaders in Alexandria City Public Schools recently embarked on a strategic planning process with hopes of modifying its current goals and measures to promote equity across the system. Leaders partnered with Hanover Research to ensure equity was the foundation for guiding new policies and practices. Hanover conducted a benchmarking study to explore how other districts around the country include an equity lens in their strategic plans, specifically examining components such as vision, mission and goals, and developed resources and tools that provided stakeholders and committee members with background knowledge of key metrics and evaluations, as well as discussion guides aimed to support further critical reflection around equity. This session provides best practices and tools for strategic planning with a specific emphasis on equitable learning environments.

INNOVATION IN SCHOOLS: A SYSTEMS APPROACH

Innovation can feel abstract and overwhelming, but there are tested approaches that help demystify it. Elmhurst Community Unit School District was drawn to the idea of controlled innovation, which is characterized by a deliberate and methodical structure. This approach is supporting Elmhurst on its journey to become a National Leader in Future Ready Learning. This session highlights key tenets and considerations of controlled innovation such as a common vocabulary, future focused vs. forward focused, exploring and exploiting, and scaling. Understand how the concepts of learning by doing, moving to action quickly, and the need to change experiences before beliefs can change interrelate and promote innovation. Gain insight into the use of innovation pilots, which break down content barriers and create a culture that supports the vision of all students graduating college-, career- and life-ready.

SUMMER LEARNING: NEW CORE STRATEGY FOR CLOSING OUR ACHIEVEMENT GAPS

As a district, Tuscaloosa City Schools is engaging in a systematic culture shift toward acknowledging low levels of student achievement and examining every internal system and practice to evaluate its efficacy in raising student achievement. In that context, the district dove into the research on summer learning loss and closely evaluated summer learning practices. Their conclusion is simple: closing achievement gaps and keeping them closed is impractical without a strong focus on summer learning. This session explores their journey as a district, from offering summer school to a few dozen students to prioritizing summer learning — full day, five-week, affordable programming with priority enrollment for the most academically vulnerable students — to serve more than 25% of their elementary students. Presenters share insights and recommendations for how to tackle this work.

LEADERSHIP FOR COLLECTIVE EFFICACY: ONE DISTRICT’S STORY OF MATH IMPROVEMENT

Four years ago, Naugatuck Public Schools took stock of its math curriculum, pedagogy and results. Leaders recognized the need for change focused on developing high levels of numeracy and math conceptual understanding. This could not be attained by establishing a program or hiring a math coach; it would require a systemic approach. During the past few years, in partnership with organizations like the Connecticut Center for School Change, the district has implemented a tightly aligned suite of strategies to build organization, administrator and teacher capacity. As a result, the district’s growth in math has outpaced the performance across Connecticut. This interactive presentation explores Naugatuck’s approach and the work still ahead.

ADVISORY, ENRICHMENT & INTERVENTION PERIOD TO MEET STUDENTS’ NEEDS

District 230’s advisory, enrichment and intervention period provides dedicated time for an advisory curriculum on assigned days and intervention or enrichment on opposing days. The district has seen enrollment in rigorous classes increase over five years while failing grades have decreased. The advisory, enrichment and intervention period embeds academic support into the school day, eliminating students’ excuses for not getting the help they need. While most students are able to schedule themselves into intervention spaces of their choice, prescribed options for students with specific academic and social/emotional needs have been implemented, too. A robust social-emotional learning curriculum addresses important topics including digital literacy, bullying, drug and alcohol use and more. Overall, student success has improved, discipline has declined, relationships have been built between students and trusted adults, and dedicated time is available to meet the social and emotional needs of students.

GETTING BEYOND THE BUZZWORDS: SEL, SCHOOL CLIMATE AND STUDENT AGENCY

Research confirms that social-emotional learning and school culture are inextricably linked, and that together they can be a powerful catalyst for promoting students’ academic achievement and equity in our schools. And yet, for all the buzz about SEL and school climate, it remains challenging work to gather reliable data and strategically apply it to yield school improvement. Hear from the leaders of an Oregon school district and a New York school district who have tackled these challenges. In particular, they answer the questions: How can we reliably measure important non-cognitive factors and school climate? How can we turn that data into action to promote student learning and well-being? Why does it make good strategic sense to go beyond surveying to involve students in this work?

HUNGER, RACE, ETHNICITY AND CULTURE

AASA sees feeding hungry children at school as a leadership issue. From the very beginnings of our concerns about health, healthy eating, chronic conditions and their relationships to learning and achievement, we have always worn an equity lens to address race, poverty, culture and hunger. This information is the result of focus groups with African American, Latinx and Asian-American stakeholders. In some of our earlier work, we were assisted by our sister organizations — the Association for Latino Administrators and Superintendents (ALAS) and the National Association of Black School Educators (NABSE). This session shares what we’ve learned about the impact of race, ethnicity and culture on health and hunger from parents, students and school system leaders. Hear from presenters as they share the impact of these factors on their leadership and decision-making related to feeding hungry children.

CREATE A VAPE-FREE CAMPUS WITH FlySense™

DETECT. EDUCATE. DETER.

KICKOFF 2020 WITH REAL-TIME VAPE DETECTION™

FlySense™ multi-sensor devices are capable of detecting vaping, smoke, and noise disturbances that may suggest violence such as bullying. When the FlySense™ sensor detects vaping signatures or decibel level anomalies caused by bullying, a zero-delay, location-specific alert notification is sent by SMS and/or email to designated school officials.

With no cameras and no microphones, FlySense™ can be installed in private places like restrooms and locker rooms.

Join us Thursday at 11:45 am for “How to Create a Vape-Free Campus”

Learn how administrators can implement technology and education to change behaviors around vaping.

EQUITY LEADERSHIP: FROM POLICY ADOPTION TO SYSTEMIC CHANGE

This critical conversation explores the development of equitable systemic leadership practice through examples of a superintendent and other district leaders’ use of a newly adopted race and equity policy and how the implementation of that policy moved an organization forward on professional learning, family and community engagement, ethnic studies curriculum, culturally responsive hiring practices and various business service functions. Learn lessons from a superintendent who was first in Snohomish County to put race next to equity business service functions. 20/20 ACADEMIC VISION FOR EXCELLENCE: THE TRANSFORMATION OF AN URBAN SCHOOL DISTRICT

Mount Vernon City School District changed leadership at the onset of the 2014–15 school year. A year later, the district’s 20/20 Academic Vision for learning was presented to the community along with a $108 million-dollar bond referendum. The 20/20 Academic Vision included a significant restructuring of schools, including moving all elementary schools to a PK–8 structure, creating three theme-based high schools of choice, and implementing full day PK for all. Along with the restructuring of the schools was the infusion of digital learning and best practices that come with blended learning, an innovator’s mindset, a comprehensive learning management system and a student-centered approach to learning. One of the key elements of the reform is addressing issues of equity and equality by meeting the needs of each student. Learn more about the comprehensive school reform model that has a focus on culture, systems, instruction and leadership within the community and the schools, and is based on challenging a culture of low expectations embedded in the principles of poverty.

RAISING THE TITANIC: TRANSFORMING THE LOWEST PERFORMING SCHOOL IN KANSAS

Culture and relationships affect how we think and, in turn, how we act. This speaks directly to four critical supports in the school system: inspiration and engagement, innovation know-how, focus on experience and relationships. Presenters discuss how reaching a child’s mind requires us first to build a relationship with that child, and that the relationship can bring something that is missing in the culture of a school: hope. They explain that a “business as usual” approach is not an effective model for teaching to the level demanded by our society and describe the value of “being in the goal,” including a partnership with local colleges so students regularly interact with college students who look like and have similar backgrounds as our students do.

Presenters:
Phyllis Cottner, Magnet Department Curriculum Lead, Wichita Public Schools, Wichita, KS
Terrell Davis, Executive Director of Public Affairs and Special Projects, Wichita Public Schools, Wichita, KS
Benjamin Reed, Program Specialist, Wichita Public Schools, Wichita, KS
Alicia Thompson, Superintendent, Wichita Public Schools, Wichita, KS

HARNESSING YOUR COMMUNITY TO FOSTER POWERFUL SERVICE LEARNING FOR STUDENTS

Discover how a school district can partner with local community groups to increase student empathy, appreciation for diversity and intention and help others through opportunities for authentic engagement in local, national and global contexts. Orinda Union School District board members, the superintendent and the founder of nonprofit Mindful Littles share why they formed OrindaCARES (Compassion, Action, Resilience, Engagement, Service) in 2017, the projects undertaken by OrindaCARES to date, expected and unanticipated student outcomes, and strategies for implementing a similar collaborative organization in your area.

KEYS TO AMPLIFYING YOUR SYSTEM’S STORY

Each school and school system has a story, but who’s telling yours? Tweeting more often isn’t enough. Through data-driven decision making and strategic communication, school leaders can re-frame the discussion and mobilize community support to improve student outcomes. The work of educators and communicators overlaps. This session offers five keys to amplifying your system’s story by enlisting trusted counsel, using the teacher’s toolbox to develop strategic communication plans, leveraging communication skills to build trust through transparency, applying differentiated communication tactics and fostering a growth mindset. It’s work that builds relationships, gets results and earns recognition. Plan now for tomorrow’s success.

RECRUITMENT AND HIRING FOR DIVERSITY AND EQUITY

Oak Park Elementary School District 97 has worked to build momentum to transform the way in which staff are screened, hired and retained that ultimately will improve the diversity and equity of their workforce and improve outcomes for all students. After conducting an external review of processes related to hiring and on-boarding diverse staff, the district recently implemented teacher recruiting and hiring models proven effective for hiring strong, diverse staff. Learn how the critical role an in-depth study of the district’s selection and hiring processes might play in understanding whether the district has streamlined, competency-based processes in place to hire the best candidates relative to a diverse staff; learn how to use strategies proven to attract a diverse and high-quality candidate pool; and understand why having a streamlined, competency-based process in place is essential for screening and selecting great candidates to work in your district.

Presenters:

DEVELOPING A COMPREHENSIVE APPROACH TO SCHOOL SAFETY

It is imperative that school districts understand best practices in school safety and how to conduct regular evaluations of their efforts. Iowa City Community School District (ICCSD) partnered with Hanover Research to identify best practices for school safety and security. The district is committed to developing a comprehensive framework for school safety and security. As such, presenters share how ICCSD leaders have focused on campus security and student mental health. This session presents best practices for (1) developing effective school safety emergency plans, building and technology design, security staffing, and risk assessment and response planning; (2) conducting regular evaluations of school safety and security policies, practices and products; and (3) identifying the factors to evaluate when assessing school facilities, student support services, and other areas. Learn how you can assess your school safety and security efforts in your own district.

BUILDING AND RETAINING AN EFFECTIVE TEACHING FORCE IN THE BRONX

In New York City, the Bronx consistently lags behind other boroughs in teacher retention and performance. As part of a three-year federal Teacher School Leader Grant, the NYC Department of Education has initiated six inter-related programs that build the hiring pipeline, retain effective teachers and sustain strong talent development practices in the Bronx. The superintendents for 28 Bronx high schools share their approach, including hiring strategies to catch the most qualified candidates early, district-led coordination of new-teacher inter-visitations and training, and support for teacher leadership. Early evidence of success shows a significant decrease in the percentage of unfilled vacancies, an increase in the retention of effective teachers in high-needs schools, improved measures of rigorous instruction and teacher collaboration, and significant increases in student proficiency on state ELA and math exams.

WHAT IF EVERY CHILD CAME TO SCHOOL ON DAY ONE READY TO LEARN?

The Wichita Falls Independent School District in Texas believes every student deserves to begin their academic career at the same starting line. It’s an issue of fairness and equity, certainly, but it’s also a practical matter. When students fall behind in the earliest years of their education, around ages 5–7, it becomes much more difficult to bring them to grade-level reading as they grow. Simply put, the biggest bang for our buck in developing strong students across grade levels comes from starting early and making sure they have a solid foundation. Learn how the district has been able to serve 95% of entering kindergartners prior to enrollment by combining federal, state and district funds and bringing in innovation.

WWELD: WHAT WOULD ETHICAL LEADERS DO?

AASA’s Code of Ethics for educational leaders has 12 standards. While the standards are clear, applying them in high-pressure, time-sensitive, complex conflicts can be challenging. WWELD is a question we need to ask, and this session provides ample opportunities to answer it. Every month, School Administrator asks this session’s panelists to respond to real-world ethical dilemmas for which there is seldom a clear solution. This session mirrors this monthly feature. Bring a case study based on your own experience to share for discussion. You’ll then be randomly placed in tabletop teams to discuss particular studies and attempt to reach consensus on optimal solutions.

THE FOURTH INDUSTRIAL REVOLUTION: ITS IMPACT ON LEADING FOR LEARNING

Life in the 21st century is constantly evolving, due in large part to the rapid development of new technologies. The first three industrial revolutions had a profound impact on a wide range of aspects in our society, including our current education system. As we enter the fourth industrial revolution, it is reasonable to expect that society as a whole will feel the impact of smart machines, artificial intelligence, 3D printing and robotics. The challenge for all educators is to update our current system or perhaps create a whole new education system to ensure we are doing our best to prepare our students for a future we have yet to fully grasp. Join the conversation as four superintendents share strategies and resources on how they lead school systems in the midst of constant and accelerating change to prepare students for their current and future lives.

Presenters:
Doug Brubaker, Superintendent, Fort Smith Public Schools, Fort Smith, AR
David Miyashiro, Superintendent, Cajon Valley Union School District, El Cajon, CA
Kamela Patton, Superintendent, Collier County Public Schools, Naples, FL
Nick Polyak, Superintendent, Leyden High School District 212, Franklin Park, IL

LEADING IN A “HE-WORLD”

Despite outnumbering males in the teacher workforce by 4 to 1, the gender gap in the superintendent continues to persist. Age, looks, sexual orientation, race, dress and likability all affect the way women are perceived and promoted in the role. Hear how a group of successful female superintendents from San Diego County (where a remarkable 62% of the superintendents are women) have navigated the landscape to reach the top. From navigating board relationships to asking for a raise to balancing family life to being a warm demander, these women share success markers from their career journeys. Using a roundtable format, participants engage with the group to identify ways to create the time and space for learning, connection and introspection in a “he-world.”

TRANSFORMING CULTURE FROM THE BOARD

Technology’s impact on student achievement has remained frustratingly low for far too long. In this session, award-winning teacher and pioneering education researcher Sonny Magana discusses the T3 Framework for Innovation from his best-selling book Disruptive Classroom Technologies: A Framework for Innovation in Education. The T3 Framework categorizes technology use and impact into three distinct stages: (T1) Translational, (T2) Transformational and (T3) Transcendent. The strategies in the T3 Framework were shown to reliably double student achievement. Learn why the T3 Framework, synthesized from Magana’s 35-year quest to accelerate student learning and achievement, has been hailed as “visionary,” “inspirational” and a “brilliant breakthrough.”

OFFICE OF HEAD START PUBLIC SCHOOLS DEMONSTRATION COLLABORATION PROJECT 2019–2020 COHORT

Twelve public school districts from around the nation were selected as Cohort 1 to participate in a special Office of Head Start Project for the 2019–2020 school year. The OHS Public Schools Collaboration Demonstration Project was co-facilitated by the Office of Head Start Federal Director and the Co-Chair of the AASA Early Learning Cohort. Learn how connections between Head Start and local public schools are making significant impacts in their communities for 3- and 4-year-old children and their families and hear directly from superintendents whose districts were included in the first cohort of its kind. Additionally, learn how to implement strategies they used and perhaps participate in Cohort 2 for the 2020–2021 school year. Be ready for singing, dancing and celebrating during this interactive session!

ETHICALLY EDUCATE YOUR COMMUNITY — AN EFFORT WORTH $90 MILLION

Aiken County Public School District and its board of trustees successfully educated the community of teachers, parents and leaders to pass the first school board bond referendum in May 2018. An overt communications effort (all approved by the State Ethics Commission) included a postcard mailer, daily social media posts, letters home to students in backpacks, 60+ community meetings led by school board members and more. Learn the difference between education and advocacy and how to lead a similar campaign in your district.

IMPROVING STUDENT SUCCESS WITH HEALTHY SCHOOL ENVIRONMENTS

Healthier students are better learners. Over the past several years, there has been an increased focus on student health, wellness and educating the whole child. The school environment can have a huge impact on students’ nutritional choices and level of physical activity. The Every Student Succeeds Act (ESSA) helps ensure that all students have access to positive and safe learning environments with necessary supports to prepare them for success. Gain a better understanding of the role that healthy school environments play in supporting overall health, as well as attendance and academic outcomes. San Diego Unified School District’s superintendent and wellness program supervisor share how wellness is a part of the total learning experience in San Diego Unified schools. The session provides tools and resources, including opportunities within ESSA, to ensure schools are complying with federal nutrition and physical activity requirements while fostering healthy environments that support student achievement.

HOW CAN REDESIGNED, FLEXIBLE CLASSROOMS INFLUENCE STUDENT ENGAGEMENT?

Physical learning spaces may influence student engagement levels, but the majority of research has focused on larger, common education spaces, not classrooms. Additional studies have been conducted in redesigned classrooms, but focus on elementary school populations and older, college-aged students. This presentation reveals the results of a dissertation study that suggests redesigned learning spaces specific to high schools indeed impact engagement levels in a positive manner. Features such as writable whiteboard tables and moveable tables and chairs provide exceptional support for engagement. In addition, subject areas such as mathematics realized unanimous positive feedback from teachers regarding the impact that such redesigned classrooms have had on high school student engagement. This session reveals data from several school districts and the implications that flexible furniture designs have on traditional, special education and hybrid learning environments as it relates to student engagement.

Presenters:
Barry Bachenheimer, Director of Curriculum, Instruction & Assessment, Pascack Valley Regional HS District, Montvale, NJ

The LGBT population makes up 10% of our students, yet our policy, curriculum, action and attention to this group are not keeping pace with the law or the moral imperative to provide an environment where LGBT students and staff thrive. We have the opportunity to lead the way and use our reach and influence to assist with the organizational changes that are critical for addressing this work. Get an overview of the law at the national and state levels, statistics on the experiences of LGBT youth and employees, national trends in public opinion on LGBT rights, and 10 practical strategies to begin this work.

WHY MENTAL HEALTH EDUCATION BELONGS IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Emotions drive how students learn. Enhancing mental health programming supports student social/emotional development, a key component of educating the whole child. Schools can greatly benefit from offering clinical services to maintain students in least restrictive environments, prevent out-of-district placements, and allow students to take full advantage of academic, social and co-curricular opportunities districts have to offer. However, management and education of these students requires specialized expertise. This session addresses how students with emotional/behavioral issues are supported with greatly enhanced educational experiences providing daily group therapy, weekly individual counseling, family therapy, dedicated study skills, supported lunch, evening parent psycho-social support programs, and immediate level-of-care evaluations required in context of school guidelines for assessment of suicidality/homicidality.

COMMUNICATING YOUR VISION FOR DIGITAL LEARNING WITHIN YOUR COMMUNITY

One of the biggest challenges that comes with leading digital innovation within a school setting is successfully engaging the whole community — beyond those directly involved inside the school district — in the planning and active support of new approaches to teaching and learning. It falls first to the superintendent to lead the outreach to the broader community. Join the conversation with three leading-edge superintendents who have developed and implemented a variety of strategies to ensure that their communities share their commitment to addressing the learning needs of their students in today’s technology-driven society. Lessons learned along the way, including pitfalls to avoid and allies needed to succeed, are revealed. Leave with specific leadership strategies and resources you can apply or adapt to your own unique needs in your school district.

Presenters:
Michael Loughead, Superintendent, Hampton Township School District, Allison Park, PA

RURAL SCHOOL DISTRICTS ON THE FRONTIER OF DIGITAL INNOVATION

With over half of U.S. school districts and nearly one-third of U.S. public schools identified as rural, the challenges and opportunities that come with digital innovation have a profound impact on a large number of students and families living in rural America. A recent survey identified four major challenges in rural districts: (1) broadband access, (2) funding, (3) people and (4) understanding the “why.” However, along with these challenges come unique opportunities for rural districts directly connected to their smaller student populations and close community connections. Join in the conversation with four superintendents from rural school districts as they share the strategies they use to lead innovation in their districts and the methods they have developed to leverage the distinct opportunities present in each of their rural school districts.

THE BARABOO STORY OF COMMUNICATIONS RESPONSE AND HEALING

On November 12, 2018, the School District of Baraboo woke up to an image of Baraboo High School students appearing to give a Nazi salute going viral on social media. Within seconds, they realized a tsunami of negative media attention and global threats. This session shares their story, their crisis communications response, and how they rose up from the nightmare to unite their community against hate. Strategies and tools are highlighted for replication in your own context. Their story continues today with the development of equity and social justice actions that may also serve useful for participants as examples of healing.

HOW TO ACCELERATE YOUR NEW TEACHERS’ EFFECTIVENESS

In an era of teacher shortage, it is imperative that we coach our novice teachers to promote their effectiveness and guarantee they receive the support necessary to remain in the profession. The Bibb County School District implemented Paul Bambrick-Santoya’s Get Better Faster 90-Day Plan as a method to coach new teachers. The entire process is built on the premise that with intentionality and foresight, schools can help teachers to be high functioning within 90 days. This session demonstrates how school instructional leaders can schedule weekly observations and feedback sessions to provide high-leverage, bite-sized, observable action steps as feedback to improve teachers’ instructional practices. Receive helpful resources to better understand a guide that contains action steps proven to change teacher practice.

WASHINGTON STATE ACADEMIES SUPPORT EARLY CAREER SUPERINTENDENTS AND THEIR MENTORS

In a state wide effort to support the leadership of new superintendents and increase the length of their tenure, the Washington Association for School Administrators designed two innovative academies. The Mentor Academy, comprised of current successful superintendents in Washington, creates learning conversations on becoming an engaged and effective mentor in building a relationship with their mentee. In addition to the support a new superintendent receives from having a mentor assigned to them, they also participate in an Early Career Superintendent Academy of superintendents in their first three years. This academy gives new superintendents a chance to learn with each other while building an authentic, vulnerable and supportive collegial relationship for many years past this academy experience. The Growing Skills Gap
Over the next decade, US employers are facing significant shortages of skilled workers, leading to nearly $1.2 trillion in lost economic output.

MyVerse helps School Districts address this growing problem.

MyVerse’s Proprietary Toolset:

• Matches students to 1-5 careers and identifies educational paths that lead to success in chosen careers;
• Presents careers that are currently in demand to support career assessments and choices;
• Provides career education via videos to learn more about the selected career and needed skills to be successful;
• Identifies educational opportunities to acquire the necessary skills (higher ed, vocational ed, etc.);
• Tracks success in pursuit of career goals in a format that can be presented to employers and higher education organizations.

Come visit us at Booth 841 to learn more!

Create opportunities for your team to join a community of like-minded educators: Receive resources throughout the year and access to our digital archives by becoming an ASCD member.

ASCD | PUBLICATIONS

Implement best practices blended learning in your districts, schools, and classrooms from our books and quick reference guides by some of education’s top authors.

ASCD | ACTIVATE

Give your teams access to a library of digital resources with the ASCD Activate Professional Learning Library.

ASCD | EMPOWER

Network with peers and attend sessions at ASCD Empower20 (March 13–16 in Los Angeles, Calif.) or the ASCD Conference on Teaching Excellence (June 26–28 in Denver, Colo.).

Build capacity with our on-site, digital, or blended-learning consulting solutions on a variety of topics with our Professional Learning Services.

School Safety, Security, and Trauma Informed Practices Summit

“School safety and security is a shared responsibility. By working collaboratively with law enforcement, behavioral health professionals, and policy makers we can fully engage with each other to better understand best practices that impact student outcomes.”

AASA President-elect
Dr. Kristi Sandvik

May 7-8, 2020
Grand Canyon University
3300 W. Camelback Rd.
Phoenix, AZ 85017

“Every state across the country should be modeling what you are doing with this conference. It is the only conference like it in America that brings the right leaders together before the tragedy occurs.”

~ Dr. Joseph V. Erardi, former School Superintendent; Newtown, CT

To register or for more information, visit www.abec.org/events

This summit is brought to you through the partnership of Arizona Business & Education Coalition, the Maricopa County Sheriff’s Office, Arizona School Administrators and Grand Canyon University’s Canyon Professional Development.
